

NEW PLEA FOR ROAD UPGRADE

Tailbacks after the crash

Report by Pam Kingsley

FRESH calls have been made for the A5 to be upgraded to a dual carriageway as it passes Oswestry after a three-lorry crash caused eight miles of chaotic traffic tailbacks.

The calls come as the Welsh Government this week announced a long-awaited bypass for the A483 at Pant and Llanymynech had been earmarked for funding following a campaign which has lasted more than a decade.

The lorry crash on the A5 on Friday last week caused gridlock around Oswestry. Nobody was injured in the collision but the A5 was closed between the Mile End roundabout and the Whittington roundabout with long tailbacks on the A483 between Llyncllys and Llanymynech as a result. The crash caused widespread disruption as many headed to Mid Wales and the coast on the first day of the school summer holidays.

Oswestry Mayor Peter Cherrington said if the A5 road was dualled then there would be the possibility of running a contraflow system to keep the traffic moving in cases such as the crash on Friday. He said: "In some cases, for instance if there was a death, you would still have to close the carriageway so that the evidence wasn't disturbed, but you'd have the option of a contraflow with a dual carriageway and you wouldn't have such long tailbacks."

Warning is issued over alcohol move

DRINKERS in Welshpool and Chirk could soon be crossing the border to the Oswestry area in order to access cheaper alcohol if minimum price plans go ahead in Wales, experts say. The Welsh Assembly said it will consult on plans to bring in a minimum charge of 50p per unit of alcohol in the country.

That could drive up the price of booze and lead to 'drink tourism' that could benefit businesses in Shropshire. Research suggests a charge of 50p per unit would save nearly £900 million over 20 years by cutting crime and illness, with 50 fewer deaths a year.

But critics warn that Welsh shops will see a slump in trade as people head to Shropshire for their alcohol.

Miles Beale, Wine and Spirit Trade Association chief executive, said he is against the proposed price hike, adding: "The substantial cost of implementation and enforcement, as well as the risk of losing shoppers across the border, is likely to hit Welsh businesses and jobs and the UK Treasury is set to lose out in £11m in revenues directly."

The consultation will run until December.

Man admits carrying out 'brutal' rape

A MAN has admitted the "brutal and persistent" rape of a woman in Oswestry.

Howard Long carried out the attack during the early hours of New Year's Day. Long had denied one charge of rape, one count of attempted rape and two further charges of assault.

But he changed his plea at Shrewsbury Crown Court on Monday, a day before he was due to stand trial.

He will appear at Shrewsbury Crown Court on September 1 for sentence. Long, 31, of Melverley, was remanded in custody by Judge Robin Onions.

Judge Onions said: "I want an assessment of your dangerousness. This was a serious offence. It was a particularly brutal and persistent rape of a stranger, of the kind of which is thankfully very rare these days. You should expect a sentence of some length."

The victim was walking from Oswestry town centre following New Year's Eve celebrations. She was walking on the B5069 in the direction of Welshpool when Long attacked her between 2.30am and 3.20am on New Year's Day.

While improvements to the A5 at Oswestry are still awaited, a campaign to have a bypass at Pant and Llanymynech appears to have taken a significant step forward. The cross-border bypass along the A483 has been highlighted as a key project for Mid Wales in the Welsh Government's National Transport Finance Plan 2015, which was published this week.

It is listed as a cross-border scheme to be financed from 2016 onwards. Councillor Dilys Gaskill, chairwoman of Pant & Llanymynech Parish Council, said the scheme's inclusion was a good sign although she said she was wary of getting her hopes up for any work to begin in the near future. "We've got to start somewhere. It's not the Tarmac going down yet but it's small steps towards the end," she said.

"The only thing is will England join up or will it only be the Welsh bit of the road?" Glyn Davies our MP and Russell George our Assembly Member have been talking to the Welsh Assembly, and Owen Paterson, our other MP, is aware of it. I know there's been a lot of negotiation going on between the MPs and AMs, so hopefully this will be the start of something happening."

President continues family link to show

John Evans has been given the honour of being named the new president of Oswestry Show, following in his father's footsteps

John given honour

THE new president of Oswestry Show will be stepping into his father's shoes when he carries out his duties at the event this year.

For John Evans's late father, Glyn was president exactly 30 years ago. Mr Evans, 71, has been involved in the one-day event, held on the first Saturday of August, since he first exhibited sheep there at the age of 16.

And he says encouraging people to become involved from a young age is one of the reasons that the event at Park Hall Showground has continued to be successful.

He first became involved with the show as a member of Whittington Young Farmers Club and then went on to help his father to show Ayrshire cattle, and Texel and Halfbred sheep. "We have always believed that getting the youngsters involved with Oswestry Show is vital, whether competition or volunteering," he said.

"If young people are given responsibility they are more likely to remain involved, rather than us older ones holding all the reins."

A whole host of entertainment has once again been lined up for the show. Tickets are available from the show office at Park Hall and the show website at www.oswestryshow.co.uk

WILDLIFE

Charity calls for performing lion events to be axed

AN animal charity which criticised a travelling show for bringing performing lions and tigers to Welshpool has called on the organisers to cancel any future shows.

An Evening With Lions and Tigers completed a 10-day run in Welshpool earlier this month despite a daily protest held outside the gates by animal rights campaigners.

Now the Born Free Foundation has called on Thomas Chipperfield, who runs the animal shows, to call any further shows off.

Will Travers, president and co-founder of the charity, said: "Born Free and the RSPCA have previously offered to assist any circus owners in the rehoming and retirement of their animals."

"The question is will Mr Chipperfield take advantage of this offer or will he take his act to Europe?"

Mr Chipperfield, however, said the animals receive the best care.

He added: "The cages the animals have exceed minimum requirements by 100 per cent."

"We work closely with zoo vets in England and Ireland."

"Whether it is natural or not to keep them, the animals receive the best care and lead long and healthy lives."

"The day I no longer looks after these animals is the day I no longer have a reason to live."

Decorator jailed for theft of jewellery from property

Report by Wayne Beese

A PAINTER and decorator has been jailed for stealing thousands of pounds worth of jewellery from a home he was working on.

Andrew Owen took advantage of doors being left open at the property in Whittington to sneak inside while the owners were home and take gold bracelets and rings worth an estimated £5,000.

The 37-year-old then sold most of the jewellery to a dealer in Ellesmere for a paltry £115 to fund his drug addiction, with other items sold on the market in the town.

Shrewsbury Crown Court heard Owen, of Perry Road, Gobowen, also stole a mobile phone and drill from a building site he was working on in Neenton, near Bridgnorth, on June 10 last year, four days after the burglary.

He pleaded guilty to burglary, two charges of theft and one count of fraud at a previous court hearing and appeared at Shrewsbury to be sentenced.

The court heard Owen had a long criminal record, with 16 previous convictions for 42 offences, and that it was the seventh house he had burgled in 13 years.

Stephen Scully, for Owen, said his client had found himself using Class A drugs again after a period of nearly a year being clean.

He said: "For around eight or nine months he was drug free and managed to gain employment, despite a record with offences of dishonesty."

"Unfortunately local people started offering him free drugs, trying to get him addicted again."

"He succumbed to temptation. He ended up owing them money, which was initially paid for through his work and his habit was managed that way."

"As time went on it spiralled and he had to find money somehow. He accepts he caused the owners of the house great distress and is genuinely remorseful."

Owen was sentenced to a total of three-and-a-half years in prison.

Judge Robin Onions said: "You have a pretty poor record."

"It seems clear to me you have had problems for many years with an addiction to drugs."

"You resort to dishonesty to fund your addiction to drugs."

Blooming hard work impresses judges

Louise Humphreys from the Oswestry In Bloom committee takes a look at one of the displays

JUDGES in the Britain in Bloom competition say the people of Oswestry have excelled themselves this year in making the town look wonderful.

The judges were given a whistle stop tour of the market town, taking in a community orchard, a garden at a primary school and even its CCTV control room.

Heart of England judge Mark Wiltshire, said it was the first time in his eight years as a judge that he had been taken to a CCTV headquarters.

But he said CCTV played a vital role in helping a town to look good.

"What CCTV can do is stop vandalism. People will think twice about scrawling graffiti on walls, pushing over street furniture and pulling up flowers if they know they are on camera," he said.

He said that the visit to the Our Lady Roman Catholic School in Upper Brook Street was delightful.

He said: "The children chatted to us about what they were growing. They were very enthusiastic and very knowledgeable."

However both Mr Wiltshire and judge Roger Bache, chairman of Heart of England in Bloom, said the stand out visit had been to the Community Orchard on Gobowen Road, run by the Cambrian Heritage Railway.

Mr Bache said: "It is an excellent community initiative. The railway has volunteers working there, young people working there and also those on the community pay back scheme working there."

"It looked good last year, it looks even better this year."

Among those who chatted to the judges at the reception at the Guildhall were representatives from Oswestry Open Spaces and the Maesbury Metals workshop for adults with learning difficulties and disabilities.

Maesbury Metals spokesman Gavin Ryan said that the members of the group had recently starting growing plants to both learn new skills and brighten up their corner of the Oswestry industrial estate.

Man injured and robbed of £20 cash

A MAN was knocked unconscious by a robber who stole £20 from him.

The 22-year-old man was walking home in Oswestry just after midnight on Monday when he was attacked.

Police spokeswoman Abbey Hartley said: "The victim was approached from behind by another man at the junction of Fir Grove and Chestnut Avenue.

"As the victim turned to look at the offender he was punched to the face and pushed to the floor, where he is thought to have been knocked unconscious. The offender then kicked him and stole £20 and a cigarette lighter from the victim's pocket. The victim suffered a minor facial injury as a result." The offender is described as being in his mid 20s to early 30s, around six foot two, of a stocky and muscular build, with short hair or balding hair. He was wearing a tight white t-shirt and had a sleeve tattoo on one of his arms.

Meanwhile, in an unrelated incident, police want to trace a Good Samaritan who went to the aid of a woman. The woman was involved in an incident on the Middleton Road bridge in Oswestry at about 9.30am on July 11 and a man went to her aid. Police would like the man to get in touch so they can take a statement from him. Anyone who can help should contact police on 101 quoting incident number 24OS110715.

Three collisions on same route

POLICE had to deal with three collisions within an hour and a half on the same stretch of road near Oswestry.

Police said some of the collisions may have been down to "rubbernecking" – drivers not concentrating on the road in front but instead looking at a crash or incident.

Oswestry safer neighbourhood team was called to the A5 near the Gobowen roundabout at 11.40am on Sunday when a caravan was shunted from behind causing it to overturn.

Officers said the incident snowballed from there.

Later at the same location a car was in collision with a coach. There were no injuries.

A third incident happened near the Lion Quays Hotel and was a four-vehicle collision.

The road was partially blocked and two people suffered minor injuries.

Parking tickets spark patients' complaints

Report by Pam Kingsley

DRIVERS have been warned to make sure they enter their registration numbers correctly into an automated parking system at a medical centre after complaints parking tickets have been issued to patients.

Some people who parked in the pay and display car park at Plas Ffynnon Surgery in Oswestry have been sent fines of £100 because the automated system has claimed they have not paid.

Oswestry Mayor Peter Cherrington, who was one of the drivers to receive a fine, said the system doesn't seem to be recognising patients of the Middleton Road surgery who are not required to buy a ticket. Councillor Cherrington said he was annoyed and concerned when he received his fine, despite believing he had entered his car registration number correctly into the computer. "I went in to see the doctor to get an appointment for an x-ray. I put my number in the machine, saw the doctor, organised my appointment and then left to go to the Shirehall," he said. "I was in there for 11 minutes – it says so on the fine they sent out. As someone who's prepared to speak out I questioned the reason behind the fine and was informed that they would deal with it and I didn't have to pay.

"When I told the lady in the surgery she was lovely and very helpful, but she said they've received a number of these type of complaints."

But Will Pollard, spokesman for ParkingEye, said he believed the issue was that patients who may be in a hurry or have other things on their mind are not entering their numbers correctly into the machine.

He said: "During opening hours, Plas Ffynnon Medical Centre operates automatic number plate recognition (ANPR) technology and users are required to enter their vehicle registration number into a touch screen terminal located within the medical centre when using the car park. In this instance the correct vehicle registration number was not entered into the terminal.

"ParkingEye operates an industry-leading audited appeals process as detailed on the parking charge notice and encourages individuals to appeal if they feel there are extenuating circumstances."

Hospital project is taking shape

The work at Oswestry Orthopaedic Hospital will provide state-of-the-art facilities

BUILDING work is well under way on a new £15.1 million theatre complex at Oswestry Orthopaedic Hospital.

The new theatres and ward development is being built alongside the main entrance, with the first of two steel frames – which will become the Bone Cancer Centre's outpatients area and a new inpatient ward – now erected.

On the other side of the new structure, activity has been focussed on the demolition of the former buildings, preparing the way for the foundations and drainage to be installed ahead of construction of a second steel frame which will be the new admissions unit, theatres and high dependency unit.

Project director Trevor Chadd, associate director of estates, said: "We are really pleased with the progress of the development and are on track for our completion target.

"We are delighted by the amount of interest we have had from patients and visitors to the hospital who can see the development progressing and we are looking forward to opening these state-of-the-art facilities next year. Completion of this key stage will enable more patients to receive treatment and care in state-of-the-art facilities."

The project is due to be completed in September 2016.

Work on the development, which includes four new clean air theatres, the high dependency unit, an admission on day of surgery unit and the new dedicated Bone Cancer Centre, is being carried out by Kier.

Patients and visitors can keep up to date with the progression of the development at a dedicated viewing area on the site boundary near to the main entrance.

Path plans for railway line take a major step forward

Report by Pam Kingsley

LONG-AWAITED plans to create a new cycleway and footpath alongside a heritage railway line have been submitted.

Shropshire Council has drawn up plans for the two metre wide path to follow the tracks of the Cambrian Heritage Railway in Oswestry.

The route will run from the footpath crossing the railway line at Coney Green in the centre of town to around the bridge where the railway passes underneath Shrewsbury Road, near the Maesbury Road Industrial Estate.

It is hoped that the new path will link in with the wider Oswestry cycle and pedestrian route network.

Shropshire Council said the new path will provide safer and more convenient links for commuters travelling to local schools and Oswestry Leisure Centre.

Plans for the cycle path were first mooted in 2011 to provide a safe link between the town's largest residential areas and its major employment sites.

A public meeting held at the time saw wide support for the idea.

The track bed is currently used as an unofficial pathway by pedestrians.

But this would be unsafe once the heritage railway begins running trains along the line again.

An application for a legal order to allow passenger trains to run on the track has been submitted by the railway.

The railway group hopes that the application will be granted later this summer.

Funding for the footpath and cycleway will come from a share of a £5 million grant that Shropshire Council secured from the Government's local sustainable transport fund almost five years ago.

Plans are also being drawn up for a new cycle path in Llanfyllin, some of which could also run along the route of the former railway line.

Shan Mayor, who told the town council about the plans at their meeting on Wednesday last week, said: "We can apply for a feasibility study to be carried out by Powys County Council in February, but we need to decide a route, find out if there's support from the community, and who will be delivering the path."

A meeting will be held in September to discuss the plans and to draw up a draft route.

Mrs Mayor said: "My brother-in-law does a lot of cycling and he says when he travels along these routes there's always new cafes and things along there every year."

"We've got a lot to offer to visitors, with Lake Vyrnwy near by."

"We could even approach Oswestry Town Council to see if we could work together."

Boat rides continue on canal

Tim Barker of Bywater Cruises with Cracker the horse

A STRETCH of canal that has been cut off due to emergency repair works is still open for boat rides thanks to Cracker the horse.

Horse drawn boat rides have been running at Maesbury, near Oswestry, for the past year, but the service has been increased throughout the summer after the waterway was closed a short distance away because of a leak.

Emergency repairs are being carried out to the canal at Aston Locks near Queen's Head.

Repair works are expected to take six weeks.

But visitors to the area and boaters arriving at Queen's Head can walk along the towpath, past the closed locks, to enjoy a trip to Maesbury on the canal boat Countess pulled by Cracker the horse.

Tim Barker of Bywater Cruises, who runs the boat, said: "We are delighted to be able to extend our service while this essential repair is being carried out so that people do not miss out on this very beautiful section of canal that is currently cut off."

"In this day of fast cars and computers, we are proud to keep our feet firmly in the horse age. There is no better way to relax and unwind from the stress of modern living than to sit comfortably aboard our special horse drawn narrow boat and enjoy a memorable journey as you cruise through unspoilt Shropshire countryside on the quiet waters of the Montgomery canal."

Materials are stolen from new war trenches project

Report by Harry Leather

THE organiser of an exhibition commemorating the First World War is appealing for witnesses after timber was stolen from his replica wartime trench project.

At least 50 wooden planks and several metal cages have been taken from the field at Park Hall Countryside Experience near Oswestry, where Mark Hignett and his team of volunteers have been busy building the trenches.

The team started excavation eight weeks ago and are midway through construction, but progress will now be delayed after the theft. Mr Hignett said he was saddened and disappointed to discover the theft.

Bailiff was bundled out of property

A COUPLE have been given a conditional discharge after bundling a bailiff out of their house when he came to collect council tax arrears.

Louis Michael Davies and Sophie Marie Farrington were living at Bridge Street in Llanfair Caereinion when bailiff Justin Hinge called to see them on March 24.

Stephen Davies, prosecuting at Welshpool Magistrates Court, said when Mr Hinge called, Davies, 25, leaned out of a window and asked him to come back later.

"Mr Hinge said it had to be sorted that day, and then said he needed to take further action," Mr Davies said. "He tried the front door and found it was unlocked."

"He went inside, identifying himself and stating that what he was doing. The female came flying down the stairs swearing and shouting and screaming at him to get out. Mr Davies came down a moment later also shouting."

"They pushed and shoved Mr Hinge out of the house and Mr Hinge then called the police."

Farrington, now of Trem Banwy, Llanfair Caereinion, and Davies, now of Ty Maen, Oswestry, admitted a charge of assault by beating. Both expressed their regrets over the matter through their solicitors. They also accepted that they should have dealt with the situation in a different manner.

Magistrates gave them a conditional discharge for 12 months and imposed costs of £40 each and a £15 victim surcharge each.

"The project is to commemorate 100 years since World War One, so we didn't expect anybody to pinch anything really," he said. "It's very sad."

"I think it's very sad for the volunteers, because obviously all of the labour is volunteer led. We've got volunteers who've put hours in and now the project is going to be delayed. So it's very frustrating when you give your time up and somebody pinches your materials and you can't finish the project."

The wood, specifically ordered for the project by Mr Hignett, was intended for the walls of underground rooms in the trenches, while the metal cages were to reinforce the ditches. The materials were funded by the Heritage Lottery, and Mr Hignett is hoping that somebody will have information that can lead to their recovery.

The theft happened late on Wednesday night last week or on Thursday night last week. The amount of wood taken means the thieves must have had a vehicle, said Mr Hignett, while the distance of the field from the main road means they probably came on a "specific job".

He said he was just hoping at this stage that the theft won't delay the opening in September, as several schools have already booked in to visit in the autumn term.

The trenches include officers' headquarters, a first aid house and firing posts for adults and primary school children and information will be provided on explanatory boards and in an education room.

Contractors were employed to excavate the ditches, but all work since has been carried out by volunteers, including soldiers from a regional army base.

Mr Hignett said: "With the centenary of World War One, it became evident that school trips to see the trenches across the Channel would be very expensive."

"There are some representations of parts of tunnels in this country but I understand this could be the largest in Britain."

"We want to make the trenches as accessible as we can."

Mark Hignett is leading the project to build the network of trenches

Joy for bus campaigners

CAMPAIGNERS have welcomed a decision to drastically reduce the number of Mid Wales bus services which were facing the axe.

Powys County Council had proposed cutting numerous routes to save £500,000 – but the council's cabinet voted to reconsider following public consultation.

The council launched a public consultation earlier this summer inviting comment on two possible options to reconfigure publicly supported bus routes as part of plans to reduce the near £5m annual cost.

Following feedback, Councillor John Brunt said a new option has been put forward that would allow the council to make the necessary savings but protect most of current bus routes.

He said the option will see 22 bus services protected.

Montgomeryshire AM Russell George praised the council for saving a number of routes.

He said: "I'm delighted that Powys County Council has listened to concerns and carefully considered the overwhelming view of residents that these important public transport links should be retained."

"In rural communities, the local bus service often provides a vital lifeline."

"There was a clear case for them to be saved and I'm pleased that the leader of the council, Councillor Barry Thomas, has been willing to listen and be pragmatic following his meeting with me and local campaigners," he added.

BREEZE ABOUT TOWN

They are going to build houses close to Oswestry's ancient hillfort unless someone starts listening to the people of the town.

How on earth the idea has got as far as it has is beyond belief. And now even a Government Inspector has ruled that the land should be zoned for housing development. Opposition is mounting but it will be too little too late unless the people of Oswestry wake up to the fact that the bulldozers could soon be heading towards the historic site, which is without doubt the town's biggest treasure.

The Hands Off Old Oswestry Hillfort campaign team will not give up and want to present new evidence to see the inspector's decision overturned. But that will be a costly appeal and let's hope enough people come forward to support the fund with hard cash to make it possible for a specialist planning lawyer to present a new case. Why aren't we hearing more from Oswestry's representatives on Shropshire Council? Shouldn't they be shouting from the rooftops that building close to this ancient monument is a non-starter?

A little bird tells me that Shropshire Council's parking enforcement team has been camped out in Oswestry with spectacular results.

Scores of motorists have been spotted parking illegally and booked by the team and apparently the council has been bombarded with complaints. But that same little bird informs me that the team has now been told to back off Oswestry and concentrate their efforts in other parts of Shropshire. It seems Oswestry does have people in high places on Shropshire Council after all.

There's movement at long last in the bid to attract major new businesses to Welshpool. Poundland will be moving into the former Co-operative building next month, ending a three-year search for tenants, and there is now a strong suggestion that another big company will at long last build on the site alongside the Tesco store which is currently being used for free parking.

And just across the road speculation is mounting that a hotel will be built on the eyesore site alongside The Smithfield Bell - after Lidl's application to build was kicked out by Powys County Council. While some current traders will obviously be unhappy with this news, it should provide a real boost for the overall economy of a town which already seems to be bucking the national trend. With the holiday season now in full swing and next month's National Eisteddfod at Meifod likely to bring hundreds of additional visitors into the town the summer of 2015 might just turn out to be an exceptional one for Welshpool.

WORKING FOR YOU

MPs have been voting this week on the new Welfare Bill. This legislation is designed to bring back fairness to our benefit system, making sure it always pays to work and tackling poverty.

I am proud that the proportion of workless families, and the proportion of children living in workless families, are both the lowest since records began in 1996.

Employment is also at record levels, with nearly 2.4 million more people in private sector jobs than in 2010.

Shropshire unemployment figures continue to improve, with the latest figures revealing a further drop to 1.5 per cent.

People in North Shropshire want to be reassured that it will always pay to work and Iain Duncan Smith's Universal Credit is a vital reform which will ensure that.

It is estimated that around three million households will gain by an average of £174 a month, 75 per cent of which will fall in the bottom 40 per cent of income distribution.

Other steps have been taken to help families with the cost of living.

Over three million people have been taken out of tax and income tax has been cut for 26 million people, giving them on average £800 extra a year.

Alongside this, the previous administration's fuel and petrol price increases have been stopped, meaning fuel is 20p per litre cheaper, saving over £10 every time a car is filled up.

Universal benefits for pensioners, including winter fuel payments, have been protected for this Parliament.

Under the benefit cap, no out-of-work family can receive more in total benefits than the average family gets in work.

The current level of the cap is £26,000 a year, equivalent to the take-home pay of those earning a pre-tax salary of £35,000 a year.

This will be reduced to £20,000 outside of London which is the equivalent to £25,000 a year before tax.

By guaranteeing that individuals will always be better off in work and putting an end to run-away benefit claims, the cap is having a real impact in changing attitudes and behaviour.

Since it was introduced nearly 20,000 households have made the choice to move into work or stop claiming Housing Benefit.

The Government is committed to making work pay and I know that the majority of hard working people in North Shropshire will want to see that the difficult choices that the Government has had to make are making a positive difference to people's lives.

Farmer tells of worries caused by drilling plans

Plans for gas drilling in the Shropshire countryside have caused worry for many. SUE AUSTIN reports

A FARMER whose land was due to be used for exploratory gas drilling has said the controversial plans caused him ill health, cost him friendships and even threatened the future of his business.

Dart Energy's bid to drill at Paul Hickson's farm at Dudleston Heath, between St Martins and Ellesmere, has been dealt a potentially fatal blow after Mr Hickson revealed the firm had now missed a deadline to start work on the site.

And the 54-year-old says he feels that a huge weight has been lifted from his shoulders now the three-year licence for test drilling on his land has come to an end.

In July 2012 Mr Hickson signed a form giving the energy company the licence to site an exploratory drill pad for coal bed methane in a field at the family's Brooklands Farm.

Since then he says he and his family have gone through three years of the most unimaginable stress and worry.

Now those three years are at an end he is urging other farmers not to sign similar licences.

"I don't want anyone else going through the same stress, hurt and worry that we have had," he said.

He said he signed the licence agreement because of advice from his late father.

"He always said that, while it was our land and we should love it and protect it, whatever was underneath it belonged to the country," Mr Hickson said.

Farmer Paul Hickson has told of the stress the drilling proposals caused

"But when I signed it there was never any mention of the damage that drilling could do to the land."

Mr Hickson said of all those who would have been affected by drilling for coal bed methane he and his family would have lost the most.

"There have been rumours that if this had gone ahead it would have made me a multi-millionaire," he said. "Nothing could be further from the truth."

"All I would have received was up to £4,000 compensation simply to put the land back to what it was, nothing else."

"This is an organic farm and with the drilling on my land I would have lost that organic status. We have a pedigree herd of Brown Swiss cattle. If chemicals had seeped into the land they would have got into the springs on the farm and could have poisoned my cows."

"The farm, which my family has had for 100 years, would have been worthless - it would have been unsaleable."

The worry has taken its toll on the normally outgoing and positive farmer.

"I am never ill, but over the last three years I have had three bouts of ill health which the doctor says have probably been because the stress has affected my immune system," he said.

"I have lost friends - good friends - because of it. And I have been very worried about the effect all this could have on my 76-year-old mother."

Mr Hickson said the worry had also affected his two farming sons, Wesley and Ashley, and his two young daughters, Jasmine and Callie.

"The two girls said to me recently that I don't spend any time with them," he said.

He is full of praise for his sons and the way they have dealt with the last three years, and also for friends that have stood by him.

"There have been people who have been so supportive and I have also made new friends who have been incredibly helpful," he said.

"I want to get back to farming the land and spending more time with my family."

Dart Energy staged public information events about its plans and the coal bed methane drilling bid led to protest meetings and campaigners setting up a camp at the site.

Campaigners were fearful of the impact on the land and the environment the proposed drilling would have.

They say now the licence for the drilling work has run out they will be taking down their pallet-constructed fort on the site and moving on. Dudleston Castle, as it was named, was built in August 2014 and over the months has grown to include separate living quarters complete with log burning stoves, a fully stocked camp kitchen and even a solar shower.

Those living inside say that while they now feel the threat has been lifted, they will not be able to move out overnight.

The spokesman for the group, who say they are environment protectors not protesters, is known only by the name of Yellowbelly.

"We would like 28 days to dismantle the camp, allow the wildlife that has made its home with us to move out and to put the site back to exactly how it was when we arrived here," he said.

"We want to leave properly. The farmer has been very understanding and so we want to ensure we leave the site as we found it. All we want to leave are our footprints."

"This is a beautiful corner of Shropshire and we are so pleased that it will not be spoiled."

Although the licence for the drilling has run out it is thought a public inquiry could still be held into the plans with all the interested parties putting forward their case.

Governments should take back control

THE debt crisis in Greece is much in the news lately.

How foolish it is that the Greek government and most governments for that matter borrow newly created money from institutions like the IMF and then have to pay it back with interest.

It is a sad fact that most governments worldwide have handed control of their money supply to private financial institutions.

This means that nations, businesses, families and most people are saddled with debts they will never be able to repay which results in much hardship, suffering and misery. How much better it would be if sovereign governments assumed the power to create and control the money supply for themselves and then created enough money each year to ensure the smooth running of their economies.

This newly created money could be spent into the economy debt and interest free.

This would be far better than the current system where we borrow newly created money as debt and then have to pay it back with interest.

If some say it can't be done they should remember that our central bank has created £375 billion through quantitative easing. Unfortunately, most of that newly created money was pumped into our failing financial sector.

If only it had been pumped into the real economy. How simple it would be to have QE for jobs, health, education, transport and so much more. I have found the Positive Money Movement via its website to be very good at explaining how the current money system always works in the interests of the wealthy few and how it could be replaced with a system that works in the interests of the majority poor.

I want the UK to be free from the control of EU bureaucrats

I AM not interested in achieving a better deal with the European Union.

I want the United Kingdom to be a free democratic country again like Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the United States.

Can you imagine those countries allowing the occupants of the corridors of corruption in Brussels to tell them to open their borders to everyone who wishes to come; close their Post Offices; ruin their fishing industry; build high speed railways that are not needed or affordable, etc?

My country is more than a star on someone else's logo.

I do not want to be ruled by an unelected junta of civil servants in Brussels who cannot be removed from power peacefully.

Our last opportunity to break free from the European Union will be the referendum.

But our Prime Minister is a quisling who wishes to stay in the European Union.

We must find another leader.

Nigel Farage would be an excellent choice.

We can trust him to lead us in the fight for our freedom and independence.

We must put every effort into the fight.

Otherwise we will become serfs to the incompetent bureaucracy.

We will be locked into a downward cycle of increasing misery.

Let us start campaigning now.

Cyclists do need to follow rules of the highways

CYCLISTS complain that motorists make their life difficult when on the road. Where there is a cycle path provided they should use it as local councils spend over £1m each year on creating and upgrading cycle paths.

Recently a group of cyclists was riding along the A518 from Stafford to Newport on the stretch between Gnosall and Newport which road users know is full of bends and for most of its length has either double or single white lines restricting overtaking. This group of approximately 10-15 members decided to play 'chicken' with motorists by the double white line stretch by rising either two or three abreast, continually changing the outside riders. Before riding along a main road cyclists should read the Highway Code where it states that where there is a single continuous white line or a double white line they should ride in single file. Many vehicles now have forward facing cameras which would show should there be an accident that the cyclist was to blame.

Questions on conservation

WITH regard to the removal of the tollhouse in Oswestry, in the 1980s a friend of mine was asked by the elderly tenant of the tollhouse if he would paint the boundary fence. She was refused permission by the conservation officer because of its historical value. It now appears that there has been no intervention over it being demolished, so why should I have to pay for a conservation department which no longer seems to do its job?

Plant-based food is very much a healthier option

PLANT-BASED foods protect health while red meat and dairy are harmful - without exception.

Eating red meat and lots of dairy products increases blood pressure and cholesterol and can often lead to heart disease and stroke. The beneficial effects of a vegan diet can help tackle cancer, obesity, diabetes, depression and anxiety. Adopting a low-fat, plant-based diet containing plenty of fresh fruit and vegetables, wholegrain foods, pulses, nuts and seeds can lower cholesterol and even reverse heart disease.

Food-related illnesses have serious economic costs for an already overstretched NHS. Red meat are strongly linked to bowel cancer, as animal products are loaded with saturated fats and sugars. Drinking large quantities of milk can lead to osteoporosis, despite industry hype that we need its calcium to build strong bones. Drinks such as soya, rice, coconut and oat-based drinks provide us with healthier sources of calcium.

Read history of events of battle

HOW we "Brits" love pomp and ceremony. The latest being the national memorial service to mark the bicentenary of Waterloo.

If anyone wants to read the true story of it and the state of the country at that time they should read The Scum of the Earth by Colin Brown.

The war was strongly opposed at the time even by Wellington's own brother.

But for the timely arrival of the Prussian Army the battle would have been lost.

The great British Army was made up of largely foreign troops and Wellington described our soldiers as "articles" and the "scum of the earth".

Nearly all the men who returned as heroes ended their lives forgotten and in poverty. The country was the closest it has ever been to a revolution exacerbated by the government abolishing income tax on the wealthy and prescribing austerity for the poor.

Sounds familiar? Wellington, in fear of the angry mobs, had his house covered with iron shutters and therefore earned the title of the Iron Duke.

Change a few names and settings and we can see how history repeats itself.

Will we never learn from past mistakes?

NEWS IN BRIEF

Court told of internet fraud

A MAN is said to have obtained around £10,000 from an internet fraud in which he was offering goods for sale that did not exist.

For more than a year Lee Hinchcliffe had used a number of websites to advertise items for sale, including iPhones, iPads and concert tickets.

At Shrewsbury Crown Court sentence was adjourned to September 1 to allow Hinchcliffe to seek legal representation.

Hinchcliffe, 25, of The Willows, Welshpool, was said to have committed the offences on various dates between August, 2013, and October last year.

He has admitted five specimen charges of making a false representation by advertising goods for sale that he did not have with a view to receiving payment.

The charges relate to his use of a number of websites.

Hinchcliffe will ask for 21 similar offences to be taken into consideration covering the frauds which involved 54 victims.

Warning over magazine scam

PEOPLE are being urged to be on guard against a scam involving the police.

Dyfed-Powys Police said businesses are being contacted by someone claiming to be from the force selling advertising opportunities in a magazine being produced by the police.

But Sian George, force spokeswoman, said there is no such thing.

She added: "This is a scam, and we are seeing increasing numbers of reports from businesses targeted by this. Please do not provide any financial or other details to such callers, and end the call."

Festive shoppers in for late night trading treat

Report by Sue Austin

LATE night shopping will be held in Oswestry this Christmas as part of a plan to woo shoppers away from bigger towns and cities.

Pop-up shops will be set up to allow traders based outside the town centre to get the full benefit. Local schools and performing arts groups could be invited to provide entertainment for the night.

The late night shopping idea has been put forward by Oswestry Chamber of Commerce and would run separately to the annual Christmas Live event, which features market stalls and a funfair.

The date pencilled in for the late night shopping event is December 11, the Friday after Christmas Live.

Members of Oswestry Town Council supported the late night shopping plan in principle at a meeting earlier this week.

Councillor Peter Cherrington, mayor of Oswestry, said: "We certainly support the idea in theory."

"I think inviting those shops outside the centre of the town to have a stall in Cross Street or Bailey Street for the evening is a fantastic idea and will make everyone feel part of the event." The town council has invested £90,000 over three years to lease new decorative lighting.

Jools Payne, chairman of Oswestry Chamber of Commerce, addressed the council. She said: "Oswestry Chamber of Commerce is in an exciting place at the present time with increasing membership and a very strong town centre forum being developed."

Firms attend seminar on pensions

Darron Humphreys from Prudent Financial Planning Services spoke at the business seminar in Oswestry

A TOTAL of 60 firms attended a seminar at Oswestry Cricket Club which looked at workplace pensions and tax savings for business.

Among the speakers were Louise Hudson from Hudson LM Ltd and Darron Humphreys from Prudent Financial Planning Services.

Mr Humphreys said: "We were fortunate that 60 local businesses attended our second business workplace pension seminar. This is a topic of great concern for any business owner at the moment and our feedback demonstrated that the information given was gratefully received. There is little help for small businesses regarding implementation of this legal obligation so hopefully we have stopped a few sleepless nights. In particular it was a rather long question and answer session at the end of the seminar such was their apprehension."

Mr Humphreys said businesses requiring further information could contact him on 07928226883.

Drugs were hidden in Kinder Egg court told

POLICE who raided the house of a suspected heroin and crack dealer found drugs hidden in a Kinder Egg, a court heard.

Gareth Jones was jailed for three years after a court heard he sold drugs on the streets to fund his own addiction.

Officers who raided his home in Oswestry found quantities of heroin and crack cocaine hidden within the egg.

The court heard police went to Jones's address in Queen Elizabeth Close on May 9 last year.

Officers recovered drugs from the bathroom.

Philip Beardwell, prosecuting, said inside the Kinder Egg there were 19 separate wraps of Class A drugs worth about £180 on the street. Of those, 14 contained crack cocaine and the other five were heroin.

Jones's mobile phone was seized and police discovered a series of text messages relating to the supply of drugs.

Mr Beardwell said that Jones had sent messages saying he had B and W for sale. B relates to "brown" which is slang for heroin, and W is "white" which is crack cocaine.

Initially Jones had denied selling drugs and claimed they were for his own use and had told police he was a member of a coven and the B and W were codes for black magic and white magic.

Jones, 39, appeared for sentence at Shrewsbury Crown Court having admitted two offences of possession of Class A drugs with intent to supply.

Judge Robin Onions said he accepted Jones was feeding his addiction and was advised to work to resolve it while in prison.

Man's death was linked to asbestos

A PLUMBER died of lung cancer after being exposed to asbestos during his career, a coroner has ruled.

Melbourne Roy Griffiths, 83, died due to industrial disease, an inquest found.

Mr Griffiths, of Castle Street, Oswestry, worked as a plumber for Pritchard and Son builders and then went on to work as a copper smith for Air Products.

The inquest, held at Wellington Civic Centre on Tuesday heard that it was during this time he would have been exposed to asbestos.

Asbestos was used in the construction industry to strengthen plastic or cement and for insulation.

When products containing asbestos are disturbed, tiny asbestos fibres are released into the air.

When asbestos fibres are breathed in, they may get trapped in the lungs and remain there for a long time. Over time, these fibres can accumulate and cause scarring and inflammation, which can affect breathing and lead to serious lung conditions.

John Ellery, Shropshire, Telford & Wrekin coroner, recorded a conclusion that Mr Griffiths died due to an industrial disease.

Arrest is made after complaint

A MAN has been arrested after being reported for banging on the door of a house with a hammer in the early hours.

The complaint was made at 2am on Thursday last week to police in Oswestry.

Sergeant Lee Johnson of West Merca Police said the man was arrested for criminal damage and possession of an offensive weapon.

Anyone with any information about the burglary is asked to contact police on 101 quoting incident number 0279s of July 11. Two further thefts were reported over the same weekend.

At about 2am on July 10, a resident of Beech Grove in Oswestry heard a noise and saw a male in a garden shed. When confronted, the male ran off taking a Stihl chainsaw.

The intruder was described as 5ft 10 inches to 6ft tall.

Children grow own produce

THE children at Morda preschool have been growing their own produce.

The pupils have been using the local community gardens situated on the site of the nearby school, where they go once a week, to plant, weed, water and care for their crops. Green fingered parents have donated plants and supported the weekly sessions, which are part of a school project to create more of a sustainable environment.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Drug allegations denied by men

TWO men have denied being involved in the production of cannabis plants worth tens of thousands of pounds and possessing cocaine with a street value of £21,000.

Benjamin David Aiden Everton, 26, and Barry James Parkes, 33, both from Llanfyllin, appeared at Welshpool Magistrates Court on Tuesday where they entered not guilty pleas. The charges relate to November 21 last year and claim that the men were concerned in the production of 30 cannabis plants in Llangadfan and were found in possession of 263g of cocaine each with the intent to supply.

Everton, of High Street, and Parkes, of Glanaber, were granted unconditional bail until the next hearing at Mold Crown Court on July 31.

Walks at canal proved popular

AS part of the recent Montgomery Canal Making Waves Festival, the Welshpool Ramblers offered a choice of local canal orientated walks.

On the first day of the festival an encouraging number of 14 presented themselves for the walks.

With less favourable weather prevailing on the second day of the festival, there was, nevertheless, a total of 19 walkers assembled at the Church Street car park for walks at Buttington and Belan.

Van Evans will lead the Welshpool Ramblers to revisit The Bearded Lake (Llyn Barfog) on Sunday.

Situated in the hills above Aberdyfi, from where the walk starts and ends, the route ascends on good hill tracks to the lake.

Discarded fat clogs up sewer in town street

Report by Sue Austin

IT'S not pretty – and it smells even worse. This is what met water engineers sent to find out why pipes had been blocked in Welshpool.

Severn Trent says it faces a huge task with sewers that have been blocked by substances that have no place going down the drain.

Fat is one of the worst offenders and engineers in Welshpool found more than they bargained for.

One sewer on Berriew Road was completely blocked by fat for 120 metres, with the manholes already overflowing.

Severn Trent said that if it had not been discovered it would have led to sewage backing up into people's homes and gardens. There have been 143 blockages in the Oldford Rise, Oldford Close and Berriew Road areas of Welshpool alone in the last four years, with hundreds more across the rest of the Severn Trent area.

Jacqueline Whitehead, customer and community officer for Severn Trent, said: "We didn't expect it to be as bad as it was. Our investigation showed that one sewer in particular, on Berriew Road, had been entirely blocked by a build up of fat, which had set solid when it hit the cold walls of the sewer. And when we tried to clear the blockage, we found that the entire sewer was blocked, for 120 metres. To help prevent this, it's better to wipe out any greasy pans with a bit of kitchen roll, and then put it in the bin."

Driver fined for causing road crash

A LORRY driver has been fined for causing a three-vehicle collision on the A458.

Danny Graham Hanson, 24, admitted driving without due care and attention, leading to the crash near Welshpool on November 3 last year.

Prosecutor Stephen Davies said: "He was behind two other vehicles on approach to a roundabout when the lead vehicle stopped. The second vehicle stopped as well but he failed to stop and went into the vehicle in front and pushed it into the lead vehicle.

"Slight injuries were sustained and both vehicles were damaged."

Hanson, of Amelfa, Llanfair Caereinion, represented himself at the hearing at Welshpool Magistrates Court on Tuesday.

He said: "It had been raining and the roads were wet, and the sun was low in the sky. I was pulling down the sun visor on the passenger side and was just too slow to stop when the cars ahead stopped."

Hanson was fined £100 and ordered to pay £20 victim surcharge and £85 costs.

His driving licence was endorsed with three points.

Man exposed himself to traffic

A MAN was seen exposing himself to passers-by on the A458 near to Welshpool.

The man was spotted on July 8 at around 5pm near to the turning for Castle Caereinion. Call Dyfed Powys Police on 101 or call Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Garden centre bid is rejected

PLANS for a garden centre on the outskirts of Oswestry have been refused.

Planning permission to build a complex on land next to the Oswestry bypass was sought by a company at Coed y Go just outside Oswestry, known as Knotwood. In its application form it suggested that up to 70 jobs could be created.

However, Eddie West, Shropshire Council's principal policy specialist said the land was committed for B class employment – business and general industry.

"The proposed use would therefore extinguish this commitment in favour of a non-class B use, and would therefore make it harder for Oswestry to achieve an appropriate balance of sustainable growth," he said.

"It is not clear what percentage of the proposed store would be dedicated to A1 retail uses, which given the full nature of the application could reasonably have been expected."

The planning officers were also concerned about traffic issues in the area.

Bookkeeping is subject of course

A NEW computerised bookkeeping course will be starting at North Shropshire College's Oswestry Campus in September.

The course serves as an introduction to computerised bookkeeping using Sage Line 50. It is a 10 week course learning the basics of computerised bookkeeping including inputting sales invoices, purchase invoices and credit notes, making bank payments, receiving bank receipts and preparing bank reconciliation.

For more information contact the college on (01691) 688000 to complete an application form.

MPs are cautious over plans to reduce seats

Report by Andrew Morris

MAJOR changes to the political map in Shropshire and Mid Wales are being treated with caution by the region's MPs.

Prime Minister David Cameron will carry out plans to reduce the number of parliamentary seats from 650 to 600.

Owen Paterson, MP for North Shropshire, said he hoped his constituency would remain unaltered.

But he said that if there are to be fewer MPs in parliament then government should also be smaller.

"I believe we could have fewer ministers and a smaller cabinet," he said.

"There are about 78,000 voters in North Shropshire and during the last review the figure for change was 78,000 plus or minus five per cent.

"As I understand, the boundaries can't cross regions and so this constituency could not go over the border in Wales or north into Cheshire.

"As an MP born in Whitchurch who has represented the area for 18 years I very much hope north Shropshire will remain unaffected."

Glyn Davies, Montgomeryshire MP, said he is "hugely disappointed" by the changes, adding that there will likely be changes to his seat.

He said: "On a personal level I am hugely disappointed, but I know it is coming and it will likely be given confirmation in 2018.

"But the government made a number of promises in its manifesto and I know it is sticking by them. We promised to cut the cost of politics by reducing the number of MPs and this is how we will do it."

Funding boost for support group

Diana Andrews and Geoff Armitage hand over the £500 cheque to Margery James MBE

A CANCER support group is £500 better off thanks to the novel fundraising efforts of an Oswestry organisation.

As well as selling scrap metal and unused household items, Oswestry 41 Club, made up of former Round Table members, raised money by fining its members for a variety of offences. Misdemeanours included swearing, removing jackets without the chairman's permission and smiling at the fining of a fellow member. Oswestry 41 Club handed a cheque to support Oswestry Cancer Support Group chairman Margery James MBE at its monthly meeting.

Mrs James has been fundraising since attending the inaugural meeting of the support group 30 years ago. Oswestry 41 Club president Geoff Armitage and committee member Diana Andrews presented the cheque. The money will be added to the £1,208,450 raised for MacMillan nurses in Shropshire in the last five years.

Councillors are updated on schools' deficit levels

MORE than 20 schools across Mid Wales had a total deficit of £900,000 at the end of the last financial year, according to new figures.

Members of Powys County Council's cabinet were told that two schools accounted for more than £500,000 of the deficit.

But there was an increase in the reserves to £3.6 million, a £1 million increase on what was forecast.

The number of schools setting unlicensed budgets has fallen from 10 in 2014/2015 to six in 2015/2016.

A licensed deficit for primary schools would be a maximum of £50,000, £100,000 for special schools and £150,000 for secondary schools.

The authority's cabinet was told that 27 schools have surpluses in excess of the limits set and they are liable for claw back.

These schools will have to put in a business plan to explain their planned use of the reserves.

Councillor Arwel Jones, the authority's portfolio holder for education, and Councillor Wynne Jones, cabinet member for finance, said that 84 of the county's schools have planned surplus budgets with 15 proposing deficits for 2015/16.

Of these 15, eight schools which includes Hay on Wye County Primary, Llanelwedd Church in Wales, Llangedwyn Church in Wales, Llansantffraid Church in Wales, Rhayader Church in Wales, St Mary's Catholic, Ysgol Glantwymyn and Builth Wells High School, are all projected to return to surplus over the following two years.

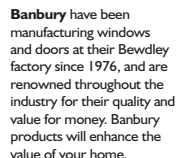

Welshpool High School is planning to return to a surplus over five years which is allowable under exceptional circumstances.

British Ironwork Centre chairman Clive Knowles greeted thousands of visitors

Classic motorbikes were on show at the event

Rally is a success

Report by Rebecca King

THOUSANDS of people rolled up to an event which saw motoring enthusiasts admire a range of vintage engines.

The first Oswestry Classic and Vintage Transport Rally proved to be a real hit, with thousands of people flocking to the free event at the British Ironwork Centre on the outskirts of Oswestry.

The event raised £2,000 for charity. The cars ranged from Lagondas through to E Types, as well as classic racing Minis to the finest Bentleys, ranging in all ages from 1911 to the 1970s.

The centre also played host to vintage motorcycles, tractors, lorries and steam engines and centre chairman Clive Knowles said it had been a huge success.

He said: "It was jaw-dropping, it really was. After all the hard work in getting the word out there about it, it was amazing to see the consequences. We think we had about 4,000 cars, it was incredible. We made some great connections and met some great clubs."

"We have such a quirky destination – where else can you see Rolls Royces parked up next to huge elephant statues? We had so many Rolls Royce and Bentley cars you could have thought we were at Buckingham Palace."

Vehicles of all shapes and sizes, styles and standards of restoration were on display on Saturday for visitors to admire and enjoy. Owners and enthusiasts travelled from all over the country, with special exhibits coming from as far as Yorkshire and Bristol for the event.

Mr Knowles said many people had been happy to donate to Hope House Children's Hospice collectors at the event. A total of £2,000 was raised.

Something for everyone at show

Thousands of people come to Oswestry Show every year for a full day of entertainment, competition and fun

Exhibits for the many varied competition at Oswestry Show come from near and far

THE 130th Oswestry Show will this year take place on Saturday, August 1.

Once again large crowds are expected to gather at The Showground, Park Hall for a whole day full of entertainment, competition and fun. For many years this popular one day event has been a highlight on the local calendar and another exciting programme has been confirmed.

Visitors to the show will be able to enjoy the thrills of the main ring entertainment provided by Stunt Mania. Spectators can watch the judging of many different breeds of horses in four separate rings around the showground.

Oswestry Show still maintains its strong agricultural links and showcases a wide variety of cattle and sheep classes. Judges are engaged from all over the country to preside on the day and one of the highlights is the grand parade of prize winners in the main arena.

This year the show is hosting the National Border Leicester Sheep Competition, a prestigious event which is being held for the first time outside of Scotland. During the day there is a variety of entertainment on the Village Green, face painting and magic for the younger generation, and for those who wish to sit and relax for a while performances from the Porthwyau Brass Band.

Visitors can also take a look at the many entries in the Horticultural Marquee, with entries from far and wide.

OSWESTRY SHOW

Strong farm links maintained

Many of the region's leading animal owners are always keen to show off their livestock at Oswestry Show

ALTHOUGH it is an event for the whole community and for all ages, Oswestry Show also takes great pride in ensuring it maintains its strong agricultural links and showcases a wide variety of cattle and sheep classes.

Judges are engaged from all over the country to preside on the day and use their expertise to decide where the top prizes should go.

One of the highlights of each year's Oswestry Show is the grand parade of prize winners in the main arena.

This year the show is hosting the National Border Leicester Sheep Competition, a prestigious event which is being held for the first time outside of Scotland.

Competition is always strong in the show's livestock sections

It is a real privilege that Oswestry has been asked to put on this event and it is very fitting that this year's president John Evans, who farms with his family at Halton Farm, Chirk, has bred Border Leicester Sheep for many years, showing them with great success at Oswestry since the 1950s.

Whilst visitors are perusing this area they can also take in the goat section and interesting varieties of rare and minority breeds, before heading off to watch the sheep shearing competition.

Spectators can also watch the judging of many different breeds of horses.

Benedict the duck is the new star at castle

AN unusual duck which has taken up residence in the moat of one of Shropshire's oldest and historic buildings has captured the hearts of local children.

The Indian Running Duck arrived at Whittington Castle, near Oswestry, last week.

Castle manager Sue Ellis said the arrival of the duck has sparked a lot of interest in the local area, particularly among youngsters at Whittington Primary School.

She said: "He is a real character. "We asked the school to ask the children to name him and we would choose the winner and give a prize.

"Names suggested included Jogger, Kusa – Indian for Happy – John and Duncan, but the winning name was chosen as Benedict Cumberquack."

By Pam Kingsley

The children from Whittington Primary School visited the castle last week as an end-of-term treat to see how Benedict liked his new name.

They, were given an ice cream to enjoy as they walked back to school on the last day of term.

Mrs Ellis said she hopes Benedict will stick around in the castle's moat to meet the hundreds of visitors which are expected over the summer.

The castle is expected to be full of activity this weekend for its biggest event of the year, the multi-period living history weekend.

Events will take place from 10am to 4pm on Saturday and Sunday and admission is £2 adults and £1 children.

Mrs Ellis said: "This year we have several new groups including The Birmingham Pals from World War I to show life at different stages of history.

"The boats are back on the moat as well as a new stall "Shoot a knight" for all to have a go.

"There will be talks on archery and weapon displays.

"Last year one of the most interesting features was showing dressing a knight through the ages – which even included our modern community policeman."

And for those who just want to sit back, look at the scenery and feed Benedict and the other ducks on the water, a new bench has been placed in the grounds in a shaded area overlooking the moat.

Mrs Ellis said she hopes to be able to add some picnic benches in the future.

Area's solicitors are considering legal aid boycott

SOLICITORS working in Shropshire and Mid Wales are considering a boycott of legal aid work in protest at Government cuts.

Seven of Shropshire's top legal firms will meet in the coming days to decide if they should cease providing legal aid work at police stations and courts – excluding the obligation to provide a duty solicitor.

Any decision to withdraw their services could lead to chaos in courts and police stations, with scores of people left representing themselves.

Solicitors covering Newtown police station and Welshpool Magistrates Court have already voted to take action because of the cuts.

Mid Wales Law Society has agreed not to take any legal aid cases from the start of this month.

The move comes after the Ministry of Justice cut legal aid fees by 8.75 per cent last year, and a further 8.75 per cent this year.

Solicitors have also highlighted the fact there had been no rise in legal aid fees for the previous 20 years.

Paul Inns, of Hanratty and Co in Newtown, said: "There is considerable concern amongst criminal defence solicitors that the combined impact of the reduction in legal aid rates, together with the introduction of the new duty solicitor criminal contracts will undermine the entire criminal justice system.

"You will be lucky to find a criminal defence solicitor in Mid Wales."

Statue removal leads to review

SURVEILLANCE of Oswestry's showpiece town park could be upgraded after thieves tried to steal a statue.

The bronze cast of Sabrina, the goddess of the River Severn, was taken off its plinth in Cae Glas Park last month.

It is thought that thieves were trying to steal the six foot statue but were disturbed and left it lying on a pavement nearby.

Now experts say the statue will need major repairs before it can be returned to its rightful place, close to the children's play-ground in the park.

Oswestry Town Council, which is responsible for the Victorian park, said the statue had been held down with reinforced anchoring pins.

It is thought the would-be thieves took a chainsaw to the statue, the noise waking a nearby resident who alerted police.

Oswestry mayor, Councillor Peter Cherrington, said that there would have been little value in trying to sell the statue for scrap.

"We hope that the statue can be repaired and replaced by the end of the summer," he said.

"We are currently looking at the CCTV in the park and whether it should be increased to ensure that all areas can be monitored."

Police are investigating the incident and have asked anyone who may have seen anything suspicious to contact Oswestry police station on 101.

The statue was removed at about 1am on June 18.

Students get to prom in style

YOUNGSTERS at an Oswestry school once again pulled out all the stops to make their annual prom a memorable occasion.

Arriving in style has become something of a tradition at the Marches School's Year 11 Prom.

And this year was no different, when various modes of transport were used to get the students to their big night on time.

From a horse and carriage to a Bentley, Batmobile, Harley Davidson and a speed boat, the mode of transport clearly set the tone for what was to be a glamorous and largest ever Year 11 Prom at The Lion Quays Resort at Gledrid near Oswestry.

The event ensured the A483 north of Oswestry was kept busy with an array of vehicles all transporting the students to their leavers prom.

Among the more unusual forms of transport used for the evening was a boat used by Thomas Lowe and Rhys Chandler.

Courtney Whitall arrived in an open top vintage sports car.

truck to the event. It was not just the students who made their way to the Lion Quays Resort for the occasion.

Parents, relatives, past students and friends all turned up in their hundreds to greet students as they arrived.

More than 200 students and 50 staff attended the event and enjoyed a traditional red carpet style welcome.

The students then sat down to a three course meal, followed by a night of dancing to a DJ.

In between courses, students enjoyed a speech by the head boy and girl.

The audience was told the prom marked an end of era and the students were excited about what was to come in the future.

They thanked the Marches School for an "amazing five years".

The annual event has become a firm favourite on the school calendar, with a large number of both students and staff attending each year.

Head girl Daisy Carter described the event as a "wonderful evening" saying she had enjoyed every minute.

Huge cow unit being constructed for Russia

WORK has begun in China on the construction of a 100,000-cow dairy unit – to supply the Russian market with milk and cheese that were originally coming from farmers in Shropshire.

Russia extended a ban on Western food imports earlier this year, meaning milk, including a significant amount produced in Shropshire, was no longer being sold in the country.

With President Vladimir Putin supporting moves to boost Russia's "food security", officials have promised to invest more in agriculture to make the country self-sufficient in milk, meat and fruit and vegetable production in the coming years.

It means the country is turning to alternatives like China to produce food and milk that once came from the UK.

And it closes the prospect of Shropshire farmers winning back contracts in the event of diplomatic relations between the West and Russia thawing.

Russia has banned milk, fruit, vegetables, meat, fish and dairy imports from the European Union, USA, Australia, Canada and Norway in retaliation against sanctions being imposed because of the conflict in Ukraine.

The super dairy being built in Mudanjiang City, north-east China, will be used for the Russian market.

It will be the world's largest and marks a £103 million collaboration between Russian and Chinese investors.

Before the Russian ban the EU exported about 300,000 tonnes of cheese, roughly 25 per cent of its production.

Mansel Raymond, chairman of Milk Working Party Copa-Cogeca, the umbrella organisation for European agricultural groups, said the ban and the Chino-Russian dairy venture sent a worrying signal to EU dairy farmers.

He said: "The scale of Chinese investment in dairy production is vast."

"I wonder now whether we will ever get the Russian milk market back."

Appeal over the refusal of giant solar facility

DEVELOPERS have lodged an appeal against a decision to throw out controversial plans to build a solar park the size of 32 football pitches.

Green Switch Developments is appealing the decision to turn down plans to create the solar park on land near Hurst Hall in Marbury, Whitchurch.

It means a government planning inspector is now set to make a final ruling on the scheme.

Cheshire East councillors voted to refuse the proposed development due to the impact it would have on the landscape.

The proposed development, which would cover six agricultural fields totalling about 57 acres, would feature 54,230 solar panels that could generate more than 13 megawatts of electricity.

Residents opposed to the plans, which were concerned about the impacts it would have on the countryside, started a campaign called "Keep Marbury Green".

The group has claimed that energy firms should be looking at brownfield sites rather than "productive arable land" which could be visible to residents and visitors from miles away.

A statement on behalf of the applicant said: "The benefits for the appeal proposal have been clearly established, and no realistic or more favourable alternative sites for the temporary development have been proposed – by any party."

"The appeal proposal would make a sizeable contribution to Cheshire East and national renewable energy and CO2 reduction targets. The development is clearly temporary and would result in the loss of no agricultural land."

A statement on behalf of Cheshire East Council said: "The appeal for the solar park, for which the council refused the application, relates to the significant adverse impact on the landscape."

"To allow the installation of the solar park would have a significant and severe adverse impact on the landscape character of the site and that this impact would be long-term and unacceptable."

Sheds for 100,000 birds win approval

Approval – Councillor Tudor Bebb

TWO chicken sheds housing up to 100,000 birds will be built in the Shropshire countryside.

The proposal by farmer Daniel Jones to diversify Poulton Farm at Little Minsterley, Shrewsbury, was given unanimous approval by members of Shropshire Council's central planning committee.

Two broiler poultry sheds and three feed bins will be built to house the birds, which will be brought in as day-old chicks and stay at the units for a 36-day growth period before being collected and taken to a processing plant.

Councillor Tudor Bebb, ward member for Minsterley, told the meeting that farmers like Mr Jones deserved the council's support and that the development is one that is necessary.

He said: "You have a young man setting out on a farming career after helping to run the family business. People like this need our support."

"This is needed in this country and this area to save the import of chickens from Thailand and other places where they do not have the controls that we do in this country."

Councillor Bebb also dismissed any potential concerns over odour as a result of the development. He said: "The odour, although it keeps coming up, is something that is strictly controlled. If there is a smell they are shut down until it is put right."

Committee member Roger Evans said he believed the application should be approved. He said: "This is in a better position than many applications we get for poultry farms that we have supported."

Councillor Ted Clarke said there were no concerns over the visual impact of the development while Councillor Kevin Pardy said they should look to support people trying to make a living.

Projects to protect rare pine martens

A PROJECT that aims to re-introduce pine martens to the region has been given a £200,000 boost.

The Pine Marten Recovery Project, which has been set up by The Vincent Wildlife Trust, will re-introduce the creatures to our region over the next six years.

This autumn will see the first pine martens brought from Scotland, where they are thriving, to an area of Mid Wales that still retains a tiny but struggling pine marten population.

The pine marten recovery project plans to move the first 20 to Mid Wales this autumn, the trust said, with a further 20 possibly being brought in next year.

Reasons for their decline include the loss of habitat, fur hunting and a cull by gamekeepers in the early 1990s.

There have been sightings of pine martens in Mid Wales in recent years and in 2012 a carcass was discovered. But experts believe they are on the verge of extinction from the region.

The project has secured a total of £200,000 from four partners. Half the money has come from Chester Zoo and the rest from the Woodland Trust, People's Trust for Endangered Species and a private company called Polecat.

The windfall is a significant proportion of the £800,000 match funding needed to finance the project.

Natalie Buttriss, chief executive of the Vincent Wildlife Trust, said "We are delighted to have these four new partners on board. Not only have they provided a welcome early financial boost to the project, but will also bring with them additional expertise and resources."

Becy Speight, chief executive of the Woodland Trust, added: "Pine martens are an iconic woodland species, once common throughout the UK."

"Successful reinforcement of pine marten populations in previously occupied areas will be a major step towards improving the conservation status and genetic diversity of pine marten in England and Wales. The protection and expansion of woodland and trees outside woods will be an important consideration to ensure pine martens, which need a diverse woodland habitat, survive and flourish."

Initially, the funding will be used towards community engagement, the transporting and releasing of the animals to Wales and on-going research to monitor the animals' movements.

The trust will be fundraising for the remaining £600,000 needed for the project over the coming year.

The trust is looking for sites with few roads, no commercial shooting and a low fox population.

Pine martens need a woodland habitat as they nest in trees and den in tree cavities. They also need an abundance of small mammals and fruit to eat.

The mammals mate in July and August and give birth the following March or April.

Meanwhile, a fund has been set up to help research how many pine martens have crossed the Welsh border into Shropshire.

Earlier this month, the first pine marten spotted in England for 100 years was photographed in woods near Craven Arms.

Now the Shropshire Wildlife Trust has launched a fund to raise £1,000 so it can run a project to find out how many are in the county.

Stuart Edmunds, of Shropshire Wildlife Trust, said: "We need to urgently run a project to find out how many pine martens have crossed the border, so we can make sure they stay in Shropshire and help them to spread back across England. The donations we can raise through people power means we can use the money to get more funding. We are asking people to help if they can."

University joins in the fun at Royal Welsh Show

HARPER Adams University headed back to Wales this week for the Royal Welsh Show after a busy first year in its pavilion at the Llanellwedd showground.

Since it was officially opened last July, the Harper Adams Pavilion has been used for a variety of school engagement visits, training and partnership meetings, as well as serving at the university's base for the Royal Welsh Show, Welsh Winter Fair and Spring Festival.

Nicola Davies, marketing officer for Wales, said: "Having the Harper Adams Pavilion on the Royal Welsh Showground has opened up for many opportunities for the university to work across the border. We've hosted a series of enthusiastic school groups who have taken part in learning activities that raise awareness of higher education and of agri-food issues."

Nicola Davies from Harper Adams University

A large team of staff and students has been on hand to welcome visitors during the four-day Royal Welsh Show which finishes today (Thursday).

Activities have included the Edible Bug Challenge, mint planting for children, wristband giveaways, an Instagram competition and receptions for invited guests.

Miss Davies said ahead of the event: "The Edible Bug Challenge has been a success already, in Scotland, England and Northern Ireland. Now we are bringing it to Wales, and I hope we'll have no shortage of people willing to test this alternative source of protein – it might become a future food staple!"

Doors remained open throughout the show for visitors to come and chat to university representatives about courses, research and other services.

The university has also continued its sponsorship of two dairy cattle classes – the Fitzhugh Dairy Championship and the Dairy Young Handler.

And Harper Adams is a major sponsor of the Wales YFC Young People's Village, the nearby entertainment village featuring a host of big acts as well as camping for 4,000.

MINIONS (U)

Yellow peril – 7/10
The Minions are depressed without a despicable leader to follow and so brave soul Kevin steps forth to find an evil boss for his jaundiced brethren. The year is 1968 and while the film's soundtrack swings its flares to the likes of The Kinks and The Who, Kevin and his cohorts Stuart and Bob careen around London armed with a host of nifty gadgets including a robo-suit and hypno-hat.

AMY (15)

Touching – 9/10
Asif Kapadia's deeply moving documentary charts the turbulent life of pop star Amy Winehouse. Unfolding largely in chronological order, Amy begins with home video footage of a good friend's 14th birthday and meticulously charts her rise to celebrity, incorporating performances, interviews, rare photographs and reminiscences.

MAGIC MIKE XXL (15)

Tearing a strip off – 4/10
Apart from the tease in the title of this sequel, Gregory Jacobs' third feature is longer and showier than the original. Unfortunately, the breathlessly staged performances are forced to bump 'n' grind against a script that is flimsier than a moth-eaten G-string. Magic Mike XXL is dull and disjointed and an affirmative narrative that all women deserve to be worshipped gets confused.

TERMINATOR GENYSIS (12A)

Terminate it – 4/10
In this misfiring reboot of James Cameron's apocalyptic time-travelling saga, Arnold Schwarzenegger's cyborg repeatedly references his advancing years in a dystopian world of young pretenders. "I'm old, not obsolete," he deadpans in that distinctive Teutonic growl. Alas, both the hulking Austrian and the blockbusting franchise are ready for the scrapheap.

It's too much to bear

Review by Damon Smith

IN 2012, writer-director Seth MacFarlane's mismatched buddy comedy Ted was a surprise hit.

Man's best friend wasn't a dog after all – it was a potty-mouthed, talking teddy with a penchant for beer, bong and scantily clad ladies.

Sadly, the bear necessities of modern life don't stretch to a second film because Ted 2 is padded with as much fluff as the huggable hero.

The sequel is a vast improvement on MacFarlane's previous film, A Million Ways To Die In The West, but even root canal treatment would be preferable to a repeat viewing of that tumbleweed spoof.

The sweetness and romance, which distinguished the original Ted, have been diluted to the point of blandness here and a climactic set piece at a pop culture convention is an unsightly mess.

Direction plods without any urgency and politically incorrect, gross-out interludes are laced with malice.

Between the frequent yawns, MacFarlane conjures moments of magic – new love interest Amanda Seyfried's a-cappella rendition of "Mean Ol' Moon"; a bizarre yet hilarious cameo by Liam Neeson – but these are fleeting.

Ted 2 opens with John Bennett (Mark Wahlberg) divorced from Lori (Mila Kunis) and fur ball companion Ted (voiced by MacFarlane) poised to walk down the aisle with a brassy checkout girl called Tami-Lynn (Jessica Barth).

One year later, the honeymoon is over

Potty-mouthed talking toy Ted returns for a second film with Mark Wahlberg and Amanda Seyfried and Ted and Tami-Lynn are arguing incessantly.

Ted's supermarket co-worker (Cocoa Brown) passes on a nugget of her wisdom: "You better have a baby or your marriage is over".

The bear lacks the necessary appendage to impregnate Tami-Lynn, so he hatches a plot to steal the sperm of American football legend Tom Brady (playing himself).

The bear-brained scheme misfires and Ted and Tami-Lynn approach an adoption agency.

Their application is red flagged because the state of Massachusetts recognises Ted as a piece of property not a person.

Soon after, the bear loses his job and the marriage is annulled.

"We take this all the way to Judge Judy if we have to," bellows John and the pals head to court with idealistic attorney Samantha L Jackson (Amanda Seyfried) to uphold Ted's civil rights.

Ted 2 runs on empty in terms of originality, relying entirely on our affection for the characters to sustain interest.

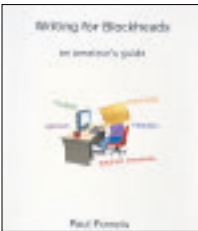

Wahlberg trades lacklustre banter with his computer-generated pal and there's an absence of on-screen chemistry with Seyfried.

WRITING FOR BLOCKHEADS – AN AMATEUR'S GUIDE

By Paul Francis
Published by Liberty Books

Francis is one of that small army of writers whose dreams have never been fully realised, yet still he loves writing. He's had works published, and won poetry prizes, but has never made the breakthrough. This has given him a lifetime of experience which he is sharing with others through this book. This is not wisdom handed down from on high by some famous writing star, or a "how to do it" instruction book, but a friendly chat from somebody on the same level as the vast majority of writers, somebody who has been there, done that, and knows what it's like.

THE QUEST FOR A MORAL COMPASS

By Kenan Malik
Published by Atlantic Books

Here is an epic history of moral thought as it developed over three millennia from Homer's Greece to modern America. It confronts some of humanity's deepest questions and beliefs and illustrates how tradition, social needs, and political desires have shaped moral thinking. Many beliefs challenge our modern attitudes and the author explores these sensitively, clearly, and with rational explanations. Malik has produced a book which clarifies exactly what makes up the global argument about the direction in which our modern moral compass should point. This is not for the fainthearted reader, but would be a fine addition to the modern thinker's bookshelf.

BLUE REMEMBERED HILLS

By Keith Pybus
Published by Robert Hale Ltd

Mixing walking, discovery, history, and storytelling, Pybus takes readers out into the beautiful Shropshire landscape to open their eyes to what lies on the doorstep. The book looks at the Shropshire Hills Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty and, as a veteran walker who leads organised walks, Pybus has a wealth of knowledge. He does not just put the focus on the hills themselves, but casts his net to tell the wider story. So, for instance, there is a chapter about the "food heroes" of the Shropshire Hills, some of the talented people who have made Ludlow in particular renowned for its gastronomy.

He also looks at some of the fine mansions in the area.

Singing star looking forward to festival

SINGING star Katherine Jenkins says she is looking forward to appearing at next year's Llangollen International Musical Eisteddfod.

And it would appear music lovers are also looking forward to her appearance after Eisteddfod bosses announced tickets to next year's event are already being snapped up.

More than 1,000 tickets were sold within hours of the box office opening for the classical singer's return to the week-long festival.

The Welsh singer will treat her audience to a concert version of Georges Bizet's opera, Carmen, on the opening night of the 2016 Eisteddfod on July 5.

It will be part of a busy year for the mezzo soprano, who is expecting her first child.

She has been named as one of the stars taking part in the Queen's 90th birthday celebrations. She said she was delighted to be returning to Llangollen for the first time since 2010 and to be doing Carmen, the tale of the downfall of Don José, a naive soldier seduced by the fiery Gypsy.

It will be the first opportunity her fans will have to hear her sing all of Carmen's operatic arias in one performance.

Katherine said: "I'm really excited as it is something I always wanted to do. I studied Carmen at the Royal Academy of Music before I graduated. It's special as it was written for a mezzo soprano."

"I've always talked about doing this and it will be the first time fans will be able to hear all the arias in one evening."

"I do usually include several operatic arias in my concerts but I have never condensed and performed all the arias from a single opera into one concert."

"Carmen is such a wonderful character and it's one of the most popular operas and every aria is special. It's going to be a wonderful night, something I hope everyone will really look forward to."

The 34-year-old is now planning on taking a break until the New Year as she and husband Andrew Levitas look forward to the birth of their first child.

SPECIAL REPORT

Report by Sue Austin

She said: "I have always said I want to enjoy being a mum so I'm taking some time away from music which I think is important."

"But I will be back next year and 2016 is already looking like it's going to be absolutely amazing and very exciting."

"As well as Llangollen I'm the first artist to have been confirmed as performing at Her Majesty the Queen's 90th birthday celebration concert in May."

"And to follow that up in July with, what will be my third appearance at Llangollen, means 2016 is already lining up to be an incredible year."

Meanwhile, music lovers who can't wait until next year's Llangollen Eisteddfod for some top entertainment can enjoy a tuneless treat at Llanymynech Village Hall tomorrow (Friday).

Fresh from their performance on the stage of the RSC's Swan Theatre, the Llanymynech Amateur Dramatic Society (LADS) is bringing a summer's evening of theatrical and musical entertainment.

The group will be performing a variety show at the hall from 7.30pm.

There will be short comedy sketches and other dramatic items during the show, as well as live music from talented local singers and musicians. LADS will be donating 50 per cent of the proceeds to Hope House Children's Hospice. LADS member Alison Utting said she was full of praise for Hope House. She said: "When my husband died very suddenly in April last year, I was told that Hope House might be able to offer help."

"Through their Sunstone Centre, my young children have received marvellous support, through one-to-one counselling, befriending and activities."

"I will always be grateful to them."

Tickets are £6, available from Llanymynech Village Hall and shop, The Herbarium, Oswestry and Mile End Tourist Information Centre.

Katherine Jenkins is looking forward to next year's Llangollen Eisteddfod

Science and stars are in the spotlight at town gallery

STUDENTS from North Shropshire College and a London film maker have turned the spotlight on science and the stars at Oswestry's Qube Gallery. Throughout July the gallery is showcasing 'Macro-Micro', an exhibition of two films by award-nominated, moving image artist, Katie Goodwin.

Katie's first film, Lightness, explores the magical wonders of the night sky and issues of light pollution in Britain. The film was shot on location in Greenwich, home to the Royal Observatory, and in the remote village of Glenelg on the west of Scotland, a community trying to attain Dark Skies status.

The second film, a 3D film called 'Small Wonders' offers a unique and fascinating insight into a secret and alien world of the amoeba, and following a 50-year scientific journey of micro-biologist, Terence Preston.

Students on the North Shropshire College A' level photography course were invited to produce a series of works inspired by both films. Under the watchful eye of course coordinator, Faye Edwards, students Annie Rogers, Jas-sett Cook, Matthew Roberts, Sian Cooper, Thomas Lee, Levi Peirson and Samantha Griffiths have created a series of astronomical constellations of their imagination called 'Constructed Skies'.

Faye said: "This has been a fantastic opportunity for the students. They've collaborated with a professional artist and gained a unique insight into the world of film artistry."

"The students used close-up and macro lens photography techniques to capture special effects of smoke and coloured dyes dropped onto water."

"They've created some really beautiful images." Moving image artist Katie Goodwin was also delighted with the results.

She said: "It's been really exciting to see young people responding so innovatively to my films."

"This is a great marker for the creators of the future." 'Lightness' was funded by an Arts Council England Grant for the Arts.

'Small Wonders' was supported by a Wellcome Trust Small Arts Award

'Macro Micro' exhibition is on at Qube Gallery until August 3.

Open daily, 9am to 5pm, Saturdays 9.30am to 12.30pm. Films are playing alternately throughout the day.

Property companies in merger agreement

TWO of Shropshire's best-known commercial property agencies have joined together under a newly completed merger deal.

Bulleys, which is based on Pearson Road in Telford, and Wellington-based Bradbury Commercial, have merged to form Bulleys Bradbury.

The companies have worked together for the last eight years, providing complementary services across Shropshire, and now plan to share their experience of the local market.

"This merger creates one of the most experienced commercial property consultancies in the area," said Rod Spiby, director at Bulleys Bradbury.

"What makes this merger particularly important for clients is our strength in depth of knowledge, experience and contacts in a very niche market."

Bulleys has grown its niche commercial property business in Telford since it opened 26 years ago, adding to the existing business which was formed in Wolverhampton 50 years ago.

Since then, Bulleys has helped shape Telford's commercial property market.

Chartered surveyor Richard Bradbury brings 25 years' experience of the local commercial property market across Shropshire towns, having run his own business Bradbury Commercial in Wellington for the last eight years.

Mr Bradbury will run the Bulleys Bradbury office at Central Park, Telford, while Bulleys' operation in the Black Country will continue under its current name.

"Our combined strength is a win-win for everyone and I'm excited for the future," Mr Bradbury said.

"It allows us to bring the highest levels of service to our clients and demonstrates our commitment to growth."

Bulleys Bradbury are appointed agents for some of Telford's highest profile schemes including the Telford Plaza office development and major industrial parks such as Telford 54.

Chauffeuring franchise in gear after deal

THE chauffeuring business run by Shropshire businessmen Tony Randall and Alan Bowyer has sealed its first franchise deal to take the brand into other parts of the country.

White 7, based in Shrewsbury, will now have an outlet in Guildford, Surrey, after a sales and marketing specialist in the London commuter belt town signed on the dotted line.

The company provides chauffeured limousines and hospitality packages for weddings, corporate travel, fine dining and sporting events.

It was launched three years ago, and the franchising arm was introduced late last year, but has now secured its first deal.

Franchisee Paul Smart has more than three decades' experience in marketing and sales.

Mr Randall said: "A great deal of effort has been put into forming and developing this company over a relatively short period of time, with the sole purpose of expanding the brand across the UK having been a priority from the very beginning."

"We are delighted that Paul can see the brand value and future potential of his White 7 franchise and that he recognises the core elements of convenience, confidentiality and quality of service offered by the company."

"We are absolutely thrilled and excited by this appointment and are confident that it will be a huge success in the south of the country."

White 7 is a partner in the British Chauffeurs Guild, teaming up to offer driver training courses to professional chauffeurs and Mr Smart's first job will be to undergo a full training programme.

Mr Smart said: "Having worked in Australia for many years I looked hard and long for a business venture on my return to the UK and was very impressed with the enthusiasm and future business plans of White 7."

Exports grease the wheels for Morris

OIL mixing company Morris Lubricants has been hailed for its overseas trade after notching up significant growth last year.

The Shrewsbury firm is among the top 200 exporters in the country in the Sunday Times HSBC International Trade 200 league table, which ranks Britain's mid-market private companies with the fastest-growing international sales.

It follows two years in which the Castle Foregate business has delivered a 23 per cent increase in its export sales, delivering a figure of £10.1 million in the year to August 2014, making Morris the 159th fastest-growing exporter in Britain. That helped bolster the company's top line, with overall revenue of £49 million for the business, which employs around 120 staff.

International sales director Stephen Dawe said Morris Lubricants was now selling in around 80 different markets. Demand is particularly focused on agriculture, vehicles of all sizes, and increasing in power generators for territories where the infrastructure is less advanced than in the UK.

It has recently seen interest coming in from Portugal, and as a result is set to further expand into former Portuguese territories such as Angola in southern Africa. "We are conscious that we don't want exports to grow too quickly, as it has to be managed properly," said Mr Dawe.

"We are putting £10 to £12 million into export markets. I would hate to guess where we go next, but I wouldn't be surprised if we couldn't add 50 per cent more in the next four or five years. There's certainly plenty of demand out there and that demand is growing."

Managing director Andrew Goddard added: "If the business continues to grow in the manner it has then we will be looking to increase employment numbers."

Japan beckons again for Shropshire firms

SHROPSHIRE businesses are to have a chance to explore the potential for trading in Japan with another trade visit to the Far East in the autumn.

UK Trade & Investment's Shropshire team ran a visit to Tokyo last November which saw a number of county businesses explore the potential for expansion in the world's third largest economy.

It will run another visit between November 16 and 19, for companies from all sectors, with a particular eye on advanced engineering.

Richard Smith, a member of UKTI Shropshire, said local firms should not be put off by Japan's high standing in technology and manufacturing.

Mr Smith said: "It's a huge market, and for British companies at the cutting edge Japan and Germany are the places they want to be."

Opportunities

"A lot of people might think that Japan already has everything we have, but for innovative British companies there are a lot of opportunities."

"It's a market that loves authentic products, whether it be food and drink, fashion – anything that's good quality, British products."

"They like heritage and tradition, and a lot of British companies have got that."

The visit in November will include a trip to the Tokyo International Industry Exhibition, but will also see the companies involved offered a bespoke package of meetings and activities to help them access the Japanese market.

Mike Tickner of high-end vehicle electrics business HCI Systems in Telford was among the business owners to take part in last year's trade visit.

He said the trip was a successful one, leading to a growing order book for the company.

He said: "We were approached to take part in the UKTI Japan engineering trade mission as Richard Smith believed that it would be beneficial to our company's development.

"We met with companies that we knew would be interested in our products but didn't have the contacts to enable us to make those calls. UKTI, using its brilliant team at the Embassy in Japan, was able to gain us access into companies to meet with the right people which has resulted in orders being placed and ongoing business expected."

Bridgnorth companies Filtermist, Genvolt, Grainger & Worrall, as well as Telford-based Midland Alloy, all joined HCI on the visit last year, along with three other companies from elsewhere in the West Midlands.

A taster session for companies considering whether Japan could present export opportunities was held at Shrewsbury's Momo No Ki restaurant this week.

The event saw Naomi Takegoshi, senior trade advisor from UKTI Tokyo, meeting business owners to talk about the Japanese market.

Delegates from last year's trade visit, including Grainger & Worrall, were also present at the taster event to talk about their experiences of travelling to Japan, and what the visit brought them.

As well as the visit being organised by Shropshire's branch of UK Trade & Investment, other foreign visits are also being organised this year, which are open to Shropshire businesses despite being organised by other counties' branches of UKTI.

These include trade missions to Poland this month, Turkey on October 12, and Poland on October 19.

Environmental business lands Test match contract

THE Ashes series may be decided over the course of more than a month of nail-biting action, but one Shropshire company has already become a winner from the trans-global cricketing extravaganza.

Bridgnorth-based Frith Resource Management won a contract to assess the environmental impact of the first test match, which England won convincingly.

It was employed by the waste contractor at Glamorgan's Swansea Stadium in Cardiff to look at the impact of the test, the first of England's five ultra-competitive meetings with Australia this summer. The match, which took place over four days, was won by the home side.

Director Paul Frith said the work provided a new direction for the High Street-based company, which was launched in 2008.

Cricket fans watch the First Ashes Test in Cardiff

"We are already getting more interest in this part of the business on the back of this," he said.

"We were doing shops and manufacturers already, but events seem to be a specific area that could lead to expansion for us."

Mr Frith added: "I'm also a massive cricket fan, so this is perfect for me."

The company, which employs six people, already provides recycling and waste management, and has branched out into environmental reporting.

The system sees the company look at how waste companies handle their recycling and green processes, assessing their carbon impact, and recommends ways to improve their green credentials.

The services offered by Frith Resource Management can help businesses gain an advantage over their competitors, said Mr Frith.

"We are expanding the service to help businesses understand and manage their impacts on the environment, as many companies don't really have a feel for that, but the knowledge can also be used to develop a competitive edge over their rivals," he said.

H D i a sheer joy to drive

By Graham Breeze

When I was a company car driver choosing which model best suited my 40,000 miles a year was always a problem. If only the Peugeot 508 had been on the scene then.

In a world where Ford's Mondeo and Volkswagen's Passat tend to have the advantage Peugeot bosses have clearly targeted fleet sales with the new 508 and a recent 600 miles round trip proved it's a model to figure prominently in any employee's choice.

Peugeot has bounced back in real style after a couple of sticky years in the sales charts and it's little wonder the 508 is helping the French company's profitability.

The 508 embodies the brand's target to move up-market and the GT Line Blue HDi 150 is a sheer joy to drive over long distances – as five hour treks to Scotland and back proved.

The test car benefited from an economical and very efficient Euro 6, two litre engine unit and the six-speed manual produces just 101g/km of CO<sub>2</sub> emissions – that's as good as it gets in this segment. What that means is you won't pay any excise licence fees in the first year and just £20 thereafter, figures certain to send fleet managers racing to their newest Peugeot dealership.

With 0-62mph in 9.8 seconds and a top speed of 130mph this Peugeot matches most in sector and the French company claims 72.4mpg on the combined cycle, though it was nearer 65mpg on my round trip which is still impressive enough.

The 508 has a longer wheelbase than the 407 it has replaced, increasing in length to 4.8 metres and is easily recognised with the stylish new Peugeot grille and prominent lion emblem.

The GT Line gets new headlamps, daytime running lights, indicators and fog lamps which are all high technology 100% LED. There's the cornering lighting function that I am now lost without and even the rear lighting structure is a complete new design.

The 508 is completely different once you are in the cabin too with a 7" touchscreen, grouping together most of the vehicle's features in a particularly easy-to-find method.

And Peugeot win accolades from me with the arrival of an outstanding Head-Up display system showing driving and navigation information in colour on a retractable smoked screen – my personal favourite. Heating and ventilation controls are easy to operate are clearly marked and every other basic control is exactly where you would expect to find it.

'The 508 GT Blue Line HDi 150 is the perfect fleet option and is also a big family grand tourer.'

It's as comfortable as it gets up front and I experienced very little fatigue at the end of a five hundred mile drive. Rear seat passengers get ample leg and headroom too and 550 litres of boot space meant plenty of room for cases, golf clubs and trolley.

Some might find the 508 a difficult car to park, it's a big unit and does take some time to get used to, but there's a good turning circle and plenty of help from a reversing camera and parking aids on the GT Line.

The 508 GT Line Blue HDi 150 is the perfect fleet option and is also a big family grand tourer, ticking a lot of the right boxes. At £26,795 expect this model to be a popular choice.

Suzuki's Celerio SZ2 model offering even better value

The Celerio, Suzuki's latest global compact citycar went on sale in the UK in February and more than 3,000 have been delivered to date.

To add further choice and value for customers, Suzuki has now introduced a new SZ2 derivative priced at just £6,999 which now completes a five-model line-up in the range consisting of SZ2, SZ3, SZ3 Dualjet, SZ4 and SZ4 with Auto Gear Shift (AGS).

Although priced at £1,000 below the SZ3 model, standard specification highlights for the new SZ2 is comprehensive and includes six airbags (driver, passenger, side and curtain), electric front windows, central locking, ESP

(a registered trademark of Daimler AG) and DAB radio with CD Tuner.

Suzuki is well known as the small car expert and Celerio has retained its trademark compact car ease of drive while providing an elevated driving position, interior space which surpasses most conventional A-segment cars, and also a class-leading luggage capacity of 254 litres.

Simply superb value for life

By James Parker

The results are in from the European jury – the all-new Superb is officially forecast to have the strongest residual values in the mid-size sector.

Having examined the UK and six other key European markets, CAP, DAT, EurotaxGlass, and IBS Automotive are forecasting that the new, third-generation Superb will be the most resistant to depreciation over the course of three years and 60,000 miles.

The new Superb was compared against the Ford Mondeo, Hyundai i40, Vauxhall Insignia, Citroen C5, Toyota Avensis, Peugeot 508 and Mazda 5. The version of the model varied depending on the market, but the winner was always the same: the new Superb.

In the UK, CAP Gold Book is forecasting that the highly specified new Superb SE L Executive 2.0 TDI 150PS will be worth nearly £1,200 more than the outgoing model after three years and 60,000 miles.

When compared against the competition the Superb is also expected to perform strongly.

Thanks to a retained value that is forecast to be eight per cent higher than the outgoing model, the new Superb is expected to be worth up to £2,650 more after three years and 60,000 miles than its direct rivals.

Jeff Knight, forecasting editor for CAP said: "With the new Superb ŠKODA has added even more space, higher equipment levels and cutting edge technology to a high-quality interior. Enhanced safety features and more efficient powertrains, finished off with a dynamic and stylish exterior, make it a compelling choice in the upper-medium sector.<sup>99</sup>

"These figures show the confidence that the industry places in the new Superb – and that comes from recognition that the Superb is the best ŠKODA ever.

"The new Superb offers new levels of comfort, space, practicality and style. It also offers all the characteristics ŠKODA customers have come to expect: great value, and high levels of safety – as recognised by a top five-star rating from Euro NCAP.

"All these attributes combine to make a car that will attract new customers to the brand," said Patrick McGillicuddy, Head of Fleet for ŠKODA UK.

Assessed

Included in the evaluation were criteria such as fuel consumption and CO<sub>2</sub> emissions, value for money, quality and reliability.

Design and brand aspects were also assessed.

Combining expressive design, advanced new technologies and outstanding spaciousness, the third-generation ŠKODA Superb will be available to order later this month, with first deliveries starting in September.

Based on the Volkswagen Group's innovative MQB technology, the Superb sets new standards for safety, connectivity, and efficiency.

The ŠKODA Superb has been the flagship model of ŠKODA's range since 2001. To date, the brand has delivered over 700,000

'Officially forecast to have the strongest residual values.'

first and second-generation ŠKODA Superbs to customers all over the world.

The latest Superb hatchback and Superb Estate are available to order now. With high levels of standard equipment, and low CO2 emissions (from just 95g/km when the GreenLine is launched) thanks to a highly efficient range of diesel and petrol engines, the latest model offers something for all customers.

Monty are shot out for just 87 by Ellesmere

IT WAS a day to forget for Montgomery who slumped to a four wicket defeat at one of their close rivals Ellesmere to lose ground in the Shropshire Cricket League division two.

Monty's decision to bat first backfired after being skittled for 87 and, despite their efforts in the field, could not stop the home side from reaching their target with four wickets in tact.

They returned with just three points while Ellesmere pocketed 24 to leap above their opponents into fourth spot.

Despite 22 from opener Andrew Barker, the visitors were soon in trouble as they limped to 87 all out in the 39th over, with Ian Fletcher (18) the only other batsman to get into double figures.

The wickets were shared, with Ashley Thomas (3-17) doing the early damage while Joe Austin and Tom Davies took two apiece.

Ellesmere also found the going tough in reply, but edged over the line with Jonathan Mitchell making 21 and skipper Tom Davies 17 not out. Harry Wilkinson, Patrick Fletcher and Aaron Ruff-cock all picked up two wickets, but it was not enough.

MONTGOMERY II consolidated their position at the top of the reserve division three despite being denied victory against one of their chief rivals Ellesmere II.

Electing to bat first, Monty racked up 237-6 from their 40 overs before having their visitors hanging on for a draw at the close on 171-9. Despite failing to gain outright victory, Monty still claimed 17 points to stay well clear at the top of the table.

Quatt a shock as Frankton in a rare defeat

TITLE-CHASING Frankton suffered a jolt in the Shropshire Cricket League premier division after slipping to a seven wicket loss at Quatt.

Put in to bat, the one time leaders failed to last all out in the 38th over, Thomas Welty top scoring on 35 while Craig Jones snapped up 4-48 off 14 overs and Gareth Jones 3-39.

In reply, Quatt were always in charge of their pursuit of the target, skipper Adrian Evans sealing the victory with an undefeated 52, with Welty taking all three wickets to fall to finish with 3-40 off 11 overs.

FRANKTON II's bowlers had a tough day in the field as their Quatt counterparts amassed 305-6 in their reserve division one clash on the way to an emphatic 139-run win.

Quatt made the most of winning the toss on a batsmen friendly wicket with skipper Nathan Hake-man (67) and opener Scott Randall (52) both making half centuries, before Chris Marshall blazed his way to 105. Although Jason Brookes hit 50, Frankton fell well short on 166.

Kerr at the double as FC Oswestry win

TWO goals from Harry Kerr helped FC Oswestry Town to a 3-2 friendly win over Llanidloes Town at Newtown's Latham Park.

Dave Hartshorn also found the net for the Mercian Regional League premier division side, with Jordan Gerrard man of the match.

Iwan Matthews struck twice as LLANRHAEDR notched a 3-2 victory against Cefn Druids in an entertaining friendly, Hamish Clifton also finding the net.

GUILDSFIELD have added another friendly to their pre-season schedule with a home clash against Bala Town on Friday, July 31.

The Lakesiders have just been involved in Europa League action, narrowly going out to a last minute goal to Luxembourg side FC Differdange.

Glas put up brave fight at leaders

CAE GLAS put up a spirited showing before slipping to a four wicket defeat away to leaders Condo-ver in the Shropshire League division two.

At a venue where they have a dreadful record, Glas posted a respectable 181 in just inside 45 overs after being put in to bat thanks to Gareth Edgerton's 54 and other useful contributions from Graham Ellis (34) and a patient 21 opener Barry Richards.

Some 43 extras also helped boost the cause, while Tom Reynolds (4-31) was the most successful of the bowlers for the Shrewsbury side.

Glas were soon among the wickets in Condo-ver's reply, having the league leaders reeling on 20-3. But they could not force home the early advantage as a fourth wicket stand between James Upton (62no) and Andrew Hodgkiss (36) steadied the ship before Haydn Cross' 42 sealed the win with time to spare. There were a brace of wickets for Keith Yapp, Ruch Nimantha and Sammy Ponnampalam, with Glas returning with seven points.

CAE GLAS II remain among the leading pack in the reserve division two after getting the better of a drawn encounter against Condo-ver II at Gatacre.

Having lost the toss, the Oswestry hosts were struggling at 48-4 before Mark Jones (39) and Nathan Bartram (30) put on 81 for the sixth wicket to help their side finish on a respectable 153-8 off their 45 overs.

With a fast outfield this was always going to be a difficult score to defend, and Jonathan Breakwell (38) and captain Mike Rogers (35) looked to be taking Condo-ver to victory.

But two wickets apiece for John Clarke, Pete Bow-yer and Dave Smith secured the winning draw for Cae Glas with Condo-ver finishing nine short of victory on 145-8 in their 45 overs. The Glas came away with 13 points for their efforts, and their visitors 10.

GUILDSFIELD conceded their home encounter with St Georges III in division four as they were un-able to raise a team. The Powys side will be docked five points, while their opponents picked up 24 points without hitting a ball in anger.

Oswestry still await a first home victory

CRICKET by John Bridgwater

OSWESTRY continue to flirt with basement danger after hopes of a first home win of the season in the Birmingham League division one were dashed with a seven wicket loss to Leamington Spa.

Prospects looked promising as openers War-rick Fynn and Alex Huxley took the score to 73 without loss after skipper Mark Robinson had elected to bat against a side Oswestry had beaten comfortably earlier in the year.

But then Huxley was caught at point for 29, Michael Johnson was sent packing first ball, and the innings lost its momentum.

Fynn went on to make a fine 82, Alun Morris a stylish 37 and Jonathan Miles 35 before the home side were all out for 228.

Leamington's openers Jamie Marsh and Jonathan Wigley made light of the Oswestry attack, putting on 141 before Wigley was caught and bowled by Robinson for 62.

Marsh went on to make a fine 108, finally suc-cumbing to a boundary catch by Alun Morris off Fynn.

A fine diving catch by Jonathan Miles off Dan Bowen accounted for No 3 Ollie Currill, but Tom Lewis – who had played for Warwickshire against Lancashire in the NatWestT20 Blast the previous evening – and Lee Hopkins saw Leaming-ton through to 230-3 with more than 15 overs to spare.

A magnificent unbeaten 122 by Josh Kirk helped OSWESTRY II to a four-wicket victory in a high-scoring thriller at Aston Manor.

It was a result which saw Josh Coleridge's side extend their lead in 2nd XI North Division Two of the Birmingham League.

Kirk hit 16 fours to see his side to victory after Aston Manor had posted a huge total of 300-9.

Austin Imber had blasted a quickfire 106 for Aston Manor, while the most successful Oswestry bowlers were Owen Aspinall (3-21) and Adam Lloyd (3-68).

Mishap

When Oswestry replied they soon lost Xavie Clarke and skipper Coleridge, but Steve Hum-phreys (58) then shared a stand of 125 with Kirk for the third wicket.

At 194-6 there was still plenty of work to be done, but Jonny Davies and Kirk took the total to 301-6 without further mishap in an unbroken partnership of 107.

Davies finished on 62 not out which included eight fours and three sixes.

It was far easier for OSWESTRY III, who cruised to an eight-wicket win over Llanidloes at Morda Road on Sunday in Division Three of the Shropshire League.

After Llanidloes chose to bat, James O'Reilly knocked over the first four batsmen at a per-sonal cost of 25. Leg spinner Adam Woodcock then weighed in with 5-33 to dismiss the visitors for 115.

Michael O'Reilly (48no) and Darron Hum-phreys (36) then led Oswestry to 120-3 and a maximum 25 points.

OSWESTRY IV's narrow 14-run success at St Georges IV saw Nick Woodcock's team maintain their bid for honours in reserve division Three of the Shropshire League.

In-form Dan Renwick led the way with 65 as Oswestry ran up 236-9 in their 45 overs, and he received good support from James Bradbury (44) and Sam Davies (28).

Former Shropshire batsman Andy Johnson proved a tough nut to crack when the Dragons replied, scoring a superb 87.

But once he was caught by Woodcock off Ollie Renwick (2-26), the writing was on the wall for the home side.

Sam Davies, who continues to impress, fin-ished with 3-55, while 14-year-old Mattie Davies picked up 2-19 as St Georges were dismissed for 222.

Knockin show spirit at Shelton

Shelton batsman Zeke Mellor flicks the ball to fine leg as Knockin keeper Zak Jones looks on

KNOCKIN & KINNERLEY gave high flying Shelton a run for their money before slipping to a 29-run defeat against the Shropshire Cricket League division one title chasers.

Electing to bat first, Shelton made good use of the track as they racked up 257-4 in their 50 overs, with Neil Salisbury crack-ing 68 not out and opener Harry Jones 63.

But Knockin gave it a good go in reply and, despite being 137-7, some spirited tailend batting kept them in the hunt.

Opener Ed Nicholas had made 58 and Ashley Sokaloo smashed an unbeaten 57 and Carl Morris 40, before the innings ended on 228. Ben Chambers took 4-69.

KNOCKIN & KINNER-LEY III crashed by 127 runs at Bomere Heath III in division fourA after being skittled for 81 in response to 208-8.

Opener Andy Flann top scored with 72 in Bomere's innings, while Paul Holyoake impressed with the ball in taking 5-25.

However, the Knockin batting subsided after a solid opening stand between Bluey Thomas (27) and Anthony James (21), Martin

James finishing with remarkable figures of 6-11 from six overs.

Knockin's fourth team fared better as they managed a losing draw against Lilleshall III in divi-sion five. Lilleshall posted 185-8 in 40 overs thanks to 57 from opener Nick Hockin and no fewer than 54 extras, Thomas Dix pick-ing up 3-31 off 10 overs.

In reply, Knockin finished just short of their target on 177-6 for a creditable draw, Andrew Pritchard making 54 at the top of the order and Daniel Martin also reaching a half century with 55 in an excellent third wicket stand.

Knockin & Kinnerley all-rounder Ashley Sokaloo – who later hit 57 not out – runs in to bowl

St Martins bag four in friendly win

ST Martins' second pre season friendly saw them maintain their winning start as they beat Chester and District premier division side Lodge Bar 4-2 at Park Hall.

Lodge Bar took the lead in the sixth minute, but the Saints were level five minutes before the interval when Steve Pugh's cross from the right was deflected to Chris Bishop who found the net from six yards.

Sam Thomas then put the hosts ahead nine minutes after the break and it was 3-1 in the 74th minute when Jack Harris hit a superb right foot free kick from 28 yards into the top corner.

Bishop then provided an even better strike in the 83rd minute to extend the lead before Lodge pulled back a consolation.

FC Oswestry, without a friendly last weekend, are scheduled to be away to Stafford Town in a pre-sea-son game on Saturday (3pm).

Morda back on the pitch

MORDA United will return to ac-tion on Saturday when they enter-tain Llansantffraid Village in their first pre-season friendly at Weston Road (4pm).

A largely unchanged squad trained this week and club officials are optimistic that the team will be permitted to take up their promoted place in in the first division of the Montgomeryshire League.

The club has been given a bye in the first round of the Graham Edwards Trophy and will face Lla-nfyllin Town or Loppington in the second round on Sunday, August 2.

Mulliner at City

FORMER Llansantffraid and Welshpool keeper Andy Mulliner has landed a plum job as lead goal-keeping coach at the academy of Premier League giants Manchester City.

Mulliner made a record 481 ap-pearances in the Welsh Premier.

Coles sets new course best in time trial

RYAN Morley put his rivals to flight as 36 riders took to the line for another good turnout in round 11 of the Oswestry Paragon time trial series.

Riding on the Queens Head-Gobowen course for the first time in the colours of RAF CC, Morley took the victory in 21 minutes 44 seconds, the first sub 22-minute ride this year.

Second place went to Steve Aston of Fibrax-Wrexham in 22.32 and in third position was Andrew Howell of Oswestry Peloton who crossed the line in 23.24.

There was a course best time of 23.25 for Neil Coles of Oswestry Paragon who also extended his lead in the club's points' series.

The next three places were also hard fought with the Paragon's Rob Kerr (24.15) splitting the Oswestry Peloton pairing of Trevor Peake (24.11) and Andrew Birch (24.28).

The next three riders all recorded personal best times with Marches CC rider Paddy Crisp finishing in 24.48, putting him ahead of the Paragon's Steve Roberts (25.02) and Paul Edwards of Oswestry Peloton (25.23).

Again it was a battle for points in the Paragon men's series with Glyn Jones finishing in 26.12.

Robert Rees, who made a dash home for a spare wheel after a mechanical problem while warming up, just made it to the start line on time before going on to clock 26.24. Darrell Walsh finished in 26.38 and Bruce Selby in 26.29.

Andy Campbell and Lisa Morley teamed up on a tandem finishing in 25.24 while Liz Breeze was the only solo lady rider finishing in 30.34.

Ifton on the up after fine win on road

IFTON look to maintain their rich vein of form in the Flowfit Shropshire Premier Bowls League when they host Bowring on Friday night.

Lying fifth in the table, the St Martins side go into the clash in fine fettle after further boosting their hopes of a high finish this term by reeling off a fine 10-4 (211-199) away win at lowly Bylet.

Simon Tyler bagged the best result of the night with a 21-8 win, while skipper Dicky Jones was his side's most valuable player following his 21-15 success against Tim Ealey.

Gerant Williams weighed in with a 21-10 win. Dave Bond won 12 and Nicky Jones to 13 to help their side take the aggregate.

Leighton Roberts was a 21-18 winner, Keiron Roberts prevailed to 19 while the closest game of the night saw Brian Hayes edge out Matthew Healey 21-20.

Saints still Hungary for Euro glory

THE New Saints continued their Champions League action this week as they looked to plot a fightback in their second qualifying round tie away to Videoton.

The Welsh Premier high fliers headed out to Hungary with plenty to do after trailing 1-0 from the first leg at Park Hall, but confident they could overturn the deficit in the return at the Sostoi Stadion.

Should they progress, they will play BATE Borisov or Dundalk in the third qualifying round, with the Belarusian side leading 2-1 from the first leg.

Boss Craig Harrison has kept faith with the same XI for all three of his side's games in the Champions League this summer, the two against Faroe Islanders B36 Torshavn that brought a 6-2 aggregate win, and for last week's first leg against Videoton.

"I picked the same 11 for the first three games, and I had the same bench," said Harrison. "The lads who played have done well, but that's not to say I won't change a few things. I've got a few tough decisions.

"Whether I make changes or not, the players are still positive because there's no reason we can't go out there and score in Hungary.

"Our keeper Paul Harrison had very little to do in the first leg, and I was hoping right up until the final whistle that we would score.

"I still think we have a chance to go through although I appreciate it will be hard. But if we believe in ourselves, we can manage it as we are still in the tie."

The Saints know they need to score at the Sostoi Stadion in Szekesfehervar, but could take heart from their display in the first leg.

"The players are still upbeat because there's no reason we can't go out there and get a good result," added Harrison. "It's a challenge, but we've got the players to do it.

"We did reasonably well, we were organised, we defended well, we were very dangerous on the counter-attack. We've had opportunities but unfortunately gave away a poor goal on 77th minute which is disappointing.

"It is always a blow when you concede in the home leg, but it is what it is and we know what we need to do in Hungary."

Weston Rhyn go top on night of shocks

BOWLS by John Bridgwater

PROMOTION-CHASING West-on Rhyn A returned to the top of the Oswestry and District Bowling League division two following a fluctuating night for several of the leading contenders.

Rhyn are now a point clear courtesy of a 5-5 draw away at LLANYMYNECH A after rallying with three winners in the back four. Andrew Riley continued his fine run of form with a 21-13 success to remain top of the second division averages, while John Renwick was a 21-12 winner.

For Llany, who were forced into late changes, youngsters Kieran Jones and Dean Roberts impressed by winning to five and seven respectively to help earn their side the aggregate by four shots (138-134).

The draw was enough to take Rhyn back to the summit after previous leaders Johnstown B suffered a surprising 9-1 (166-138) drubbing at LLANRHAEDR A.

Hywel Jones won to 21-14 and Emyr Roberts 21-15 to keep Llan well placed to challenge as they have a game in hand on their rivals.

Another surprise saw in-form ELLESMERE B slump 9-1 at GEORGE who eased their basement worries with a timely 165-92 shots win.

Joy Payne (21-7) gained the consolation for Ellesmere, while Ian Butler (21-5) proved too hot to handle for the home side.

CHURCH B boosted their cause with a fine 6-4 success at CRIFTINS B after sneaking the aggregate by just one shot, 143-142.

John Roberts (21-8) marked his late call-up with a single figure success, and Pam Milner prevailed 21-13, while Robbie Hughes (21-8) staged a good response for the Dudleston Heath hosts.

ELLESMERE A remain rooted to the foot of the table after crashing 9-1 (164-112) at home to YE OLDE CROFTE A, their lone success coming from John Harrison (21-18).

Crofte stormed to victory with five single figure winners, with Allan Jones, John Hughes and Andy Knott all victorious to six.

In division one, WHITTINGTON A remain in the lower reaches after their 8-2 (157-17) reverse at Ruabon A despite wins from Mike Brunt and Brian Sinker to 13 and 18 respectively.

CRIFTINS A lost ground on the leading pack despite their battling 7-3 (146-130) reverse at the title chasing Johnstown A with their best wins coming from Ron Crooke (21-12) and Andrew Jones (21-13).

Johnstown still share pole position with Llanguollen A who won by a similar score against Overton A (149-122).

Jubilee joy for Daves in Pairs

Jubilee joy for Pairs winners Dave Edwards and Dave Bond, seen with (centre) organiser Trevor Roberts and (right) runners-up Sue Taylor and Mark Littlehales

DAVE Edwards and Dave Bond have re-affirmed their status as big guns in the Oswestry League.

The Criftins-Llangollen combination proved unbeatable in the league's Jubilee Pairs at Ellesmere.

Edwards, a semi-finalist in the Merit in May, had suffered another title near-miss in the Cynwyd Open Doubles last month.

But there were no mistakes on Sunday, as he and former Meole

Brace man Bond beat Sue Taylor & Mark Littlehales (Weston Rhyn/Johnstown) in the final.

"The finalists had shown great form through the day, but it was the Dave's woods on the longer marks that saw them stretch out into a comfortable lead," said league competition secretary Trevor Roberts.

"Sue and Mark never gave up but, when Sue set a shorter mark on what was to be the final end, their opponents got in for a good four to finish the match 21-3.

"It was a lovely sunny day in beautiful surroundings to start, with heavy rain early afternoon, then lovely weather again to finish – but the standard of bowling throughout the day was first class."

Both semi-finals ended 21-10 with Ade Humphries & Jamie Waugh and Courtney Metcalfe & Kelly Richardson missing out.

Whittington maintain their title push

BOWLS by John Bridgwater

FOX LANE look to be running away with the division four title race after their 9-1 (165-96) home beating of LLANRHAEDR C took them 15 points clear at the top.

The in-form Mike Flanagan was again too hot to handle after winning to six while Mike Haycocks (21-4) was the best of the night and Peter Williams (21-9) was a third single figure winner.

Gelly Williams gained some consolation for the visitors by winning 21-18 to secure a lone point.

CHURCH C were edged out by just two shots (140-138) in their 6-4 reverse at LLANYFYLLIN A whose Keith Davies and Mervyn Powell both won to 10. For the visitors, Roy Jones was the best winner with a 21-7 verdict.

In division five, LLANRHAEDR B stayed hard on the heels of the leaders after seeing off Cynwyd B 7-3, with the hosts taking the shots by just eight (152-144). Juliet Brown was a fine 21-5 winner.

IFTON, who are running away with division six, were made to battle all the way before securing a 7-3 victory at Llangynog B. The St Martins side took the aggregate by just two shots (134-132) as their unbeaten record was put to the test, Gareth Williams taking the coppers to seven.

Robins are also flying the flag in Europe

WHILE The New Saints have been making their mark in the Champions League this season, their Welsh Premier rivals Newtown have also shown they can compete with Europe's best.

After defeating Maltese club Valletta 4-2 on aggregate, the Robins put up a battling effort before suffering a 2-0 first leg defeat at FC Copenhagen in the second qualifying round of the Europa League.

Despite being on the back foot for most of the night against the Danish full-timers, the Robins kept themselves in the hunt for Thursday's return leg in Mid Wales.

Buoyed by their historic win over Valletta in the previous round, the Robins arrived in fine fettle as they looked for another famous night on the European stage.

But the Welsh Premier League side got off to the worst possible start in front of an 8000 crowd at the Parken Stadium, when Benjamin Verbie headed in Peter Andersen's cross after three minutes.

However, thanks to a spirited defensive showing and some fine saves from keeper Dave Jones, Newtown refused to crumble and it took until the 74th minute for Kasper Kusk to double Copenhagen's lead with a fine strike in the left hand corner.

Despite only trailing by two goals, Newtown are under no illusions they face a tough task to turn the tie around in the second leg at Latham Park.

But boss Chris Hughes paid tribute to another gutsy display from the part-timers who never stopped running until the final whistle.

"I thought the players were tremendous," he said.

Tennis ladies prove too hot for Hinstock

OSWESTRY Tennis Club's ladies third team served up a bumper haul of points from two home fixtures in the Shropshire League against the first and second teams of Hinstock.

Against Hinstock 2, the first pair of Carol Johnson and debutant Clare Hann beat the opposing first pair in straight sets 6-3, 6-0 and were even more impressive against the Hinstock second pair dropping only two games 6-1, 6-1.

The second pair of Carolyn Yates and Jo Dalletos were also dominant in their rubbers taking them 6-1, 6-0 and 6-3, 6-2 respectively. This earned the home side eight points.

Against Hinstock's firsts, captain Linda Clark partnered Carol Johnson and in the first round rubbers they took the first set 6-3 but dropped the second set 5-7 before winning the deciding third set tie break. The second pairing of Yates and Dalletos overcame the opposing second pair in straight sets.

In the reverse rubbers, Yates and Dalletos needed a deciding third set tie break to take victory over their opponents while Clark and Johnson's second rubber couldn't be completed due to the floodlight time limit being reached when they were leading 5-1 in the deciding third set.

Pool look to push on for promotion

AFTER another excellent bowling display, Welshpool bid to maintain their promotion push in the Shropshire Cricket League division two when they visit Prees on Saturday.

Although leaders Condoover are running away with the title, the race for the other promotion slot remains wide open with several sides in the hunt.

And lying fifth, Pool will have a chance of making a swift return to division one if they can maintain the kind of form that saw them skittle Bishop's Castle for just 74 last weekend before racing to a seven-wicket win.

Put in to bat, Castle started solidly to reach 22-0, then suffered a remarkable collapse to slump to 40-9 before a last-wicket stand of 34 prolonged the game.

Skipper Mat McWhinnie led the way with 3-14 off 11 economical overs, Robert Anderson chipping in with 2-9 off eight overs and Tom Anderson 2-33.

Openers Paul Chapman (21) and Roger Knight (28) then put Pool on course for a comfortable afternoon as they wrapped up victory with plenty of time to spare.

Montgomery, dismissed for just 87 last week, look for a response from their batsmen against visiting Much Wenlock, while Cae Glas also bid to get back on track at home to second-placed Welling-ton III.

Ellesmere, who moved up to fourth following their victory over Montgomery, will be hoping for more of the same when they head to Bishop's Castle, while in division one Knockin and Kinnerley entertain Newtown.

After seeing their title ambitions dented by last week's defeat against Quatt, Frankton face a crunch premier division trip to new leaders Newport.

What a legend! Ben turns on the Power

BEN POWER turned up the heat in the televised Guttercrest Cup at Anglesey Circuit as he stormed to victory in the latest round of the National Legends Car racing championship.

The Guttercrest Racing driver from Guilsfield finished seventh and third in the heats, but beat a 27-car grid to win the final. He took the overall win and lifted the inaugural Guttercrest Cup, in essence his own trophy!

"It was a brilliant day's racing," said 25-year-old Power, who lies second in the UK championship series. "The TV cameras were there, and we were sponsoring the day, so we had a lot of support there."

The races are due to be shown on Motors TV on Thursday, August 13.

The Legends formula originated on the US oval tracks, and the cars have an American look, being 5/8-scale replicas of classic US models. Guttercrest Racing runs a Ford Coupe 1934 replica, with a 1250cc Yamaha motorcycle engine.

The previous day, Power also won the final at Anglesey by a full seven seconds, but had a disappointing day overall, with a sixth place in heat one and failing to finish heat two after getting involved in two separate incidents.

Guttercrest, the sponsors of the cup, is the family-owned aluminium guttering company, based in Oswestry, which also sponsors the team.

Oswestry need some home comforts

CRICKET by John Bridgwater

"The wicket looked to be breaking up in the second half of our innings with the odd ball keeping low, so we thought we may have enough, but after tea it played like a road," said Oswestry chairman Mike Robinson.

"We bowled well enough, beat the bat, but needed a few early wickets to put them under pressure. Once their openers got in and put on 141 for the first wicket, the game had gone for us.

"Once again we needed a bit of luck, something to go for us like a run out, which hasn't happened this season."

He added: "Old Hill are going well, but there's not much between the teams in this league, and we know that if we can put in a good performance, then it's a game we can win."

Oswestry had been looking to complete a double over Leamington and made a promising start with a 73-run opening stand.

However, despite Warrick Fynn making a fine 82, along with Alun Morris (37) and Jonathan Miles (35), Oswestry were all out for 228, which proved a tough total to defend with a small boundary and fast outfield.

Leamington openers Jamie Marsh (108) and Jonathan Wigley (62) set up victory.

Meanwhile, Oswestry begin their defence of the Salop Leisure T20 Trophy on Friday when they play Bridgnorth in the semi-final at Shrewsbury (6.15pm). The winners meet Shrewsbury in the final on Friday, August 7.

Holders off their marks with a win

HOLDERS Gobowen Celtic began their defence of the Graham Edwards Memorial Trophy with a 2-0 first round win over Ellesmere's Athletic Market.

Kieran Barry went close to breaking the deadlock for Market in a goalless first half when rattling the bar with a shot from the edge of the box.

But Gobowen took the lead on the hour when Luke Dwyer's corner from the right was flicked on by substitute Sam Jones to George Morris who headed home from six yards.

The advantage was doubled just two minutes later when Dwyer's corner from the right was knocked down by Ryan Lock to Carl Harris who dragged the ball back before firing in from six yards.

Market almost pulled one back late on when Barry's strike from 18 yards was superbly saved by keeper Ashley Jones.

The tournament, with all the matches played at Gobowen Playing Field, will be contested by 12 teams on a knockout basis before concluding with the grand final on Sunday, August 9.

All money raised goes to Leukaemia Research for which more than £115,000 has been raised over the years.

St Martins became the second team to progress after defeating their own reserve team 3-1 in their first round tie.

The reserves had taken the lead through Tom Freeman's sixth-minute penalty, but Jamie Hands levelled matters on 29 minutes.

Dan Graham then put the senior side ahead 11 minutes from time before Hands wrapped up the victory with his second goal of the game in the last minute.

The Saints will now take on Duddeston Heath in the second round next Thursday.

Awesome four-some for super Atherton

HIGH-RIDING mountain biker Rachel Atherton maintained her remarkable run after powering to victory in the GB National Downhill championships at Llangollen for the fourth year running.

With brother Gee Atherton out of action, the Llanrhaeadr ace flew the family flag in style, first sounding a warning to her rivals in qualification.

With the track improving, she put in a clean and fast run to qualify in 2:18.807, some 2.1 seconds ahead of Tahnee Seagrave with Manon Carpenter third, more than eight seconds back.

As Atherton headed up the hill for the women's finals, her nerves were not improved by a short delay when a pony wandered onto the track.

However, while none of her rivals could match her qualification run, Atherton went even faster in another storming ride. She crossed the line in 2:17.141 to take her fourth title by 5.432 seconds, with Carpenter runner-up and Katy Curd in third place.

"The track was really good fun, and I'm well chuffed to win for the fourth time on the run," said Atherton.

"It was great that there are so many family and friends here and I'm so proud to be representing Great Britain by getting to wear the GB sleeve for the rest of the season at World Cups."

FOSBROOK OFF TO THE EUROS

SPORT by John Bridgwater

WITH just over a year to go until the Rio 2016 Paralympics, Oswestry's Mark Fosbrook has a chance to stake his claim when he represents Great Britain at the 2015 European Wheelchair Basketball Championships later this summer

Fosbrook and the GB Men's Team, therefore, will not only be playing for an unprecedented third consecutive European title, but one of five highly coveted qualification places for next year's Paralympic Games.

At the European Championships, the GB Men's Team will begin their qualification campaign in Pool A, taking on the Czech Republic in their opening game on Friday, August 28.

The team then goes on to face Poland, France, Germany, Italy, and Spain, with the top four teams from each of the two pool groups progressing through to the quarter-finals.

From start to finish, the championships promises spectators a world class, action-packed sporting spectacular and, to deliver the event, British Wheelchair Basketball (BWB) has also teamed up with key partner the University of Worcester with support from the Worcestershire County Council, Worcester City Council and Worcester-shire Local Enterprise Partnership.

"I am so proud to have made the team and get a chance to represent my country alongside my fantastic teammates," said a delighted Fosbrook.

"To be able to do that in Worcester will be amazing as it means my family and friends will be able to watch and see what all my training commitments have accumulated to."

GB Men's Head Coach Haj Bhanja said: "The depth of talent we have within the Men's Squad meant that selection was once again a very challenging decision: every athlete has worked incredibly hard both throughout the season and our recent intensive programme.

"We now begin our final preparations for the Championships: our primary focus centring upon developing our units in not only training, but upcoming tournaments – enabling us to refine our play by the start of next month.

"There are never any easy games at a European Championship, but our preparation programme and the invaluable home crowd support will enable us to maximise our potential."
